CATTLE IN PANIC TRAMPLE MAN IN STOCKYARDS FIRE

Missouri Stockman Falls Among Animals While Trying to Release Them.

FOUR BARNS BURNED

Six Thousand Sheep, Routed, Cannot Be Separated According to Ownership.

LOSS PROBABLY $15,000

Wind Helps East Side Firemen Keep Flames From Exchange Building.

Stampeding cattle seriously injured Henry Stogsdill of Cabool, Mo., when fire swept a portion of the National Stockyards in East St. Louis Wednesday afternoon.

The cattle rushed against a high fence on which he was standing. He was jostled off and among them and was trampled. His right arm and several ribs were broken and he has severe scalp wounds.

Stogsdill had brought in a shipment of cattle which had been run from the cars into one of the pens near the Exchange Building. The fire started in the hay barns and spread quickly to the sheep barn.

Falls Among Animals.

Stogsdill was trying to open a gate and let his cattle out into an alley when they surged against the fence and he fell in their midst. He was rescued with difficulty and cared for temporarily at the Exchange Building and then taken to St. Mary's Hospital.

Fred Barles, yardmaster, had a narrow escape. Seven hundred head of cattle were in the pens near the fire. Barles ran through the alley, throwing the gates open. The cattle stampeded. He was knocked down, but fell so near the fence that by lying close until the first bunch had passed he avoided injury. He then clambered to the top of the fence.

The fire was discovered at 12:20 in one of the hay barns. It is presumed to have been caused by a spark from an engine. The three hay barns and the sheep barn soon were blazing and the Exchange Building was threatened, but a favoring wind helped the firemen save it.

Sheep Are Separated.

In the sheep barn were 0600 head of sheep. The gates were thrown open and they were driven out and none of them were injured, but it now will be impossible to separate them according to ownership.

There were 3000 bales of hay in the three houses, which is ruined. The damage is estimated at $15,000.

A general alarm brought out all the fire apparatus in East St. Louis. At 1:20 the fire was under control.

FAIR ROBBER CHLOROFORMS A WOMAN WHO RESISTS HER

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Strategy failing her, a good-looking young woman, stylishly dressed, last night produced a revolver and a handkerchief saturated with chloroform and held up and robbed Mrs. Mary Batcewels in her home in First street, Jersey City.

The daring feminine robber first knocked at the door and introduced herself as an agent for the gas company. She asked permission to remove the coins from the quarter-in-the-slot gas meter. This was denied her, and she quickly drew a revolver and while the frightened housewife held up her hands, chloroformed her and proceeded to ransack the flat.

HUDSPETH WILL ASSIST MACK

New Jersey State Chairman to Manage Campaign in East.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Robert F. Hudspeth, chairman of the New Jersey State Democratic Committee, announced today that he has been appointed and has accepted the position of vice-chairman of the National Democratic Committee and that he will be Eastern campaign manager for Bryan.

Third Base Stolen at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Sept. 2.—After a game between the Maroons and the Maplewoods at the Belleville ball park the keeper reported a stolen base which the scorer had overlooked. Somebody stole third and made a home run. The police did some base running, but they could not find the third bag. The keeper discovered it in a back yard near the park and sold for it. The boy who had stolen it said he wanted it for a souvenir.

LAWYERS WHO GRILLED CHERRY ARE ASSAULTED

Friends of Divorce Defendant Attack Attorneys of Woman Suing Him.

MOB MAKES THREAT

Judge in Trial Appeals to Crowds Not to Attack Assailants.

By Telephone From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Mo., Sept. 2.—A night of rioting followed the trial of Rachel Pierce Cherry's suit for divorce from John Cherry, which ended here at 11 p. m. yesterday. Two of Mrs. Cherry's lawyers were slugged by Cherry's chief witness and his friends; a witness for Mrs. Cherry was chased into a hotel by a crowd of men, and later a mob searched the town for the man who slugged the attorneys, threatening to lynch him. He was spirited away by friends.

George Purcell, a saloon keeper of Jacksonville, Ill., was Cherry's principal witness. He came to Paris to testify against Mrs. Cherry's character, and when Attorneys James T. Boyd and W. M. Hairgrove and Senator F. W. McAllister summed up at the conclusion of the testimony last night they denounced Purcell and other witnesses from Jacksonville as "resort keepers and gamblers, imported to blacken a good woman's name."

Late last night Attorneys Boyd and McAllister were discussing the case in a saloon in the rear of E. Major's drug store. Purcell and a friend, Thomas Russell, entered and approached Boyd, who was sitting on a counter. Two of Mrs. Cherry's witnesses were standing near by. They were Benjamin F. Horn of 4149 Cook avenue, St. Louis, and P. R. Schwartz, manager of Wies' Hotel in East St. Louis, where Schwartz testified, Cherry and the woman who is suing him had registered as man and wife.

Saloon Keeper Questions Lawyer.

Purcell, who is powerful physically, walked up to Attorney Boyd and said: "What did you have to say about me when you argued the case tonight?"

"I said just what the evidence in the case justified," replied Boyd.

Purcell and Russell left the saloon. They stood outside for a moment, talking. Then they returned.

Purcell walked up to Boyd and struck him in the face. Boyd fell on the counter, and when he tried to rise Purcell knocked him down again. Then Purcell, according to the statement of others who were in the saloon, dragged Boyd from the counter, threw him to the floor and kicked him in the face and side.

R. M. Hustead, brother-in-law of the young woman whom Cherry married just before his alleged common-law wife sued him, was in the saloon. He left with Purcell after the attorney had been attacked.

Attorney Beaten at Station.

W. M. Hairgrove, another attorney for Mrs. Cherry, was slugged shortly after Boyd was assaulted.

Hairgrove was standing on the platform of the Paris depot, waiting for a train. He held a grip in one hand and a bundle of law books in the other. His wife was standing beside him.

Hustead, the present Mrs. Cherry's brother-in-law, hurried up to Hairgrove, and, without a word, struck him in the eye. The blow nearly felled Hairgrove. He dropped his grip and law books to defend himself, but Hustead struck him repeatedly in the face and the attorney was unable to return the blows.

The train had come in while Hustead was assaulting Hairgrove. The Sheriff of the county was standing on the platform of one of the cars and witnessed the attack. He did not make any arrests, and left town on the same train.

Witness Chased to Hotel.

A few moments later Schwartz, the hotel man who testified that Cherry and Rachel Pierce Cherry registered as man and wife, was attacked by a crowd in the saloon where Attorney Boyd had been assaulted. Schwartz ran out of a rear door. The crowd ran around the corner and intercepted him.

Husted, who had slugged Attorney Hairgrove, was leading the crowd. Schwartz knocked Husted down as they closed on him. He turned and ran for the hotel owned by J. S. Pool, and the crowd followed him.

Schwartz ran up the hotel steps into the office, pursued by Husted and about twenty others, and dropped, exhausted, to the floor. Pool kept the crowd back until Schwartz reached his room safely.

Meanwhile, Purcell, the saloon keeper, had been arrested by a Deputy Sheriff, but was released immediately. When friends of Mrs. Cherry learned of the various assaults they armed and began to search for Purcell, declaring they would "finish him" if they found him. They patrolled the streets all night, but Purcell had disappeared. It is supposed that his friends drove him in a buggy to a nearby town, where he boarded a train for Jacksonville.

Judge Appeals to Crowds.

Russell was arrested at Pool's Hotel at 3 o'clock this morning. He had escaped Mrs. Cherry's friends by entering the hotel through a rear door and

SUPREME COURT ASKED TO KEEP VOTE SECRET

Writ Prohibiting Opening of Ballot Boxes Is Sought.

SAGER GETS A DELAY

Technical Reasons Are Advanced by Those Who Oppose Primary Investigation.

The Supreme Court at Jefferson City was asked Wednesday to prevent, by a writ of prohibition, the opening of the ballot boxes from the Third Ward precincts, as evidence against the election officials accused of committing frauds there.

The opening of the ballot boxes has been set for Friday in the Court of Criminal Correction. Five of the fraud cases are set for that time.

The application for a writ of prohibition, to forbid Judge Wilson A. Taylor to open the boxes, was filed Wednesday with the Supreme Court by former Judge C. Orrick Bishop and Hugh C. Brady, attorneys for the accused men.

Argument to Be Heard Thursday.

Justice Gantt, presiding, announced that the matter would be taken up Thursday. Circuit Attorney Sager obtained this delay by a request, made by long distance telephone. He said he would appear Thursday and file his objections to the issuance of the writ.

Arguments on a formal motion to set aside the order for the production of the boxes, made last Friday, were offered Wednesday before Judge Taylor. He overruled the motion at 2 p. m.

Eight technical reasons are cited by the attorneys for objecting to Judge Taylor's order. They declare, in effect, that Juge Taylor had no jurisdiction in the case, and that the opening of the ballot boxes would be an improper proceeding.

Jones Upholds Judge.

Circuit Attorney Sager and his assistants, Seebert Jones and Grant Gillespie, upheld Judge Taylor's course in their arguments Wednesday.

The detectives who are canvassing the wards for the Circuit Attorney found strange conditions in the First Precinct of the Sixteenth Ward. If the returns made there by the election officials are correct, residents of that ward can vote at the age of 9.

According to the official returns, John Boehm, John Boehm Jr. and James Boehm, all of 1456 O'Fallon street, voted at the primary. The detectives reported that oBehm Senior says he did not go to the polls at all. Boehm Junior is 13 years old and James Boehm is 9.

In the same precinct the name of Philip Burne, 1227 North Fourteenth street, was officially reported to have been voted. He has been dead a year, the detectives say.

Thirty Had Moved Away.

The official returns from this precinct gave the following as the vote cast there: Cowherd, 96; Hadley, 28; Ball, 5; Stapel, 15; Wallace, 6; total, 144. The canvassers found 19 voters who say they did not go to the polls at all. Thirty others could not be found, because they had moved away long before the primary.

The clerks in Sager's office are busy preparing the slips to be carried by the policemen who are to canvass the wards for the Circuit Attorney. They expect to have a big batch of them ready Thursday, when the canvassing will begin.

KERENS FOES WANT NAGEL TO GET IN RACE

Republican Leaders Adjourn Meeting in Order to Make an Argument.

The failure of a sufficient number of leaders of the Republican party in Missouri to answer the calls of United States Subtreasurer Akins and Jeptha Howe, chairman of the City Republican Committee, to organize a revolt on the State organization and on the candidacy of Richard C. Kerens caused an adjournment of the meeting at noon to endeavor to induce Charles Nagel to become a candidate for the Senatorship.

Though more than 60 invitations to the meeting were sent out not more than 20 Republicans were in attendance, and the greater number of these were St. Louis Republicans. The word had been passed among the Akins-Howe men that Kerens was to be "rolled" and that the meeting would indorse another man.

Tuesday night the politicians had it that Lieutenant-Governor John C. McKinley of Unionville would be indorsed. David W. Hill of Poplar Bluff declined to get out of the race, and the McKinley men in the meeting had not a sufficient strength to dare put through such an indorsement, though the McKinley men were in a majority.

Move on Nagel.

When N. A. Mozeley of Bloomfield, speaking for Hill, told those in attendance at the meeting that his candidate would not withdraw no matter what the meeting did, Howe, after a consultation with Akins, urged that the meeting postpone action and attempt to induce Nagel to become a candidate. Nagel had repeatedly said he would not be in the race. Howe's plan was adopted, and the meeting adjourned at 1 p. m. until 3.

The meeting is being conducted on the fourth floor of the Mercantile Club behind closed doors, none but those holding invitations being permitted on that floor.

Incidentally, the meeting is considering a successor to Walter S. Dickey, chairman of the Republican State Committe, and a close friend of Kerens. The Howe-Akins combination is understood to desire Al Shapleigh or John S. Leahy for Dickey's place.

Federal officeholders figured conspicuously at the gathering, among the more prominent being Charles F. Gallenkamp, Surveyor of the Port; W. L. Morsey, United States Marshal; Ed Allen, Collector of Internal Revenue, and Ben Russell, chief clerk in the Internal Revenue Collector's office.

About 30 of those invited to the meeting had not appeared when Chairman Akins called for order. Akins declared that 5000 Republicans had written to him, asking that steps be taken to oppose Kerns' senatorial ambitions.

Hill refuses to take kindly to the suggestion that he withdraw.

"I am in the race to stay," said he to a Post-Dispath reporter, "and I shall not attend the Mercantile Club meeting."

Lieutenant-Governor McKinley's campaign manager, A. T. Martin of Unionville, was busy buttonholing the assembled politicians. Brief addresses were made by Jeptha D. Howe, D. L. Burnsides of Poplar Bluff and James Moore of Lebanon.

It developed at the meeting that "Lib" Morse of Excelsior Springs had deserted the Kerens cause. Morse was Kerens' manager in the senatorial fight at Jefferson City three years ago, when Kerens bolted the caucus nomination of Thomas K. Niedringhaus.

Porthos Gerhart Refuses to Ride on Garbage Boat Until Aramis Miller Calls Attention to Fine Linen and Glassware on Board.

The Three Musketeers, Athos Ziebold, Porthos Gerhart and Aramis Miller, while the day was yet young, struck their tents at the foot of the Avenue Chouteau and moved upstream to the lowermost point of the Rue d'Olive.

"Here," said Athos, "is the place appointed where we shall wait for the coming of the great knight, Sir Andreas Hofer O'Reilly, who will show us WHERE TO BUILD THE BRIDGE."

"As for me, here I am and here I stay," cried Porthos in a burst of anger.

"What?" cried Athos. "Wilt thou not follow the lead of Sir Andreas Hofer O'Reilly?"

"Ho for O'Reilly!" shouted Aramis.

Porthos' face grew red. The veins on his mighty neck stood out like whipcords and he waved his giant arms.

"Am I a superannuated cabbage?" he thundered. "Am I a last year's soupbunch? Am I a down-and-out tomato? Am I a sere and yellow spinach?"

"Why this flowery speech?" asked Athos, in surprise.

"Well," bellowed Porthos, "did not that caitiff messenger who waited on us yesternoon say that this Andreas Chauffeur O'Reilly, if that be his name, would have us ride to yonder shore in a garbage boat? I'll dance rings around Saturn before I'll do it. I shall fall back upon the soap factory and await your return."

"Nay, say not so," quoth the soft-spoken Aramis. "Know ye not that the Saturn is a veritable palace afloat?"

"Aye, a palace for pigs—the pigs of L'Isle de Chesley. I know them well," snorted Porthos.

"That may well be, but do you not know that the ends of the earth have been swept to provide fine linen for the Saturn? There can you sleep under quilts of down that cost even 100 francs. There will you find table cloths fit for the ransom of a king, napkins the price of which was 60 francs the dozen, rare plate and cunningly wrought glasses—and that which fills them."

"And why?" asked Porthos, somewhat mollified, "why do they go to this expense to transport garbage?"

"Because," replied Aramis, "THEY ARE CARRYING OUT THE PEOPLE'S SWILL."

Porthos, after much persuasion, was prevailed upon to go aboard the Saturn.

The Three Musketeers were in the aftercabin examining the glassware when the Saturn, with Sir Andreas Hofer O'Reilly in command, pulled out.

"BUM," DETECTIVE DOG, IS A LOWLY CAPTIVE IN POUND

Picked Up by Hoodlum Wagon After Visit to Policeman.

"Bum," a dog that for nine years has helped the police of the Carr Street Station to scent crime, isn't proud of himself now. He's a prisoner himself at the dog pound after a ride in the dog hoodlum wagon, and the charge against him is that he's just a dog.

Passes Pleasant Evening Fighting.

Tuesday night "Bum" was invited over to the home of Policeman Powers, 1429 North Seventh street. He spent the evening enjoyably, fighting with other dogs in the neighborhood, and at 9 o'clock he was tired.

"I guess I'll go to bed," he wagged his tail to Powers and stretched out in the hall.

He rose early Wednesday morning and strolled out to take his constitutional. Just then the dogcatchers came around the corner and they got him.

Dog Gone to Pound.

Tomasso and Powers missed "Bum" when they reported for dufy.

"Where's that dog that slept with me last night?" inquired Powers.

"Dog's gone," said the desk sergeant. "In the pound."

"Well, I'll be dog-gone," said Powers. "I'll go bail him out."

The dog authorities at the pound agreed to release "Bum" on his own recognizance. He will be free Thursday.

Train Hits Trackmen; One Killed

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—John Soehne was killed and two were fatally and six seriously injured this morning when a Northwestern train ran down a gang of trackmen. Three trains approached them at the same time, and, endeavoring to avoid all of the trains they ran into the path of the Northwestern train.

RUBE UNABLE TO SAVE GAME, BUT HE SAVES A LIFE

Eccentric One Adds to His Conquest by Pulling Man From Lake.

While his fellow Browns were getting the worst drubbing of the season at Soptrsman's Park, Rube Waddell was hitting fowls and saving the life of a sportsman at Pittsburg Lake, near East St. Louis.

Rube appeared at the lake Tuesday afternoon, armed with the shotgun which Philadelphia admirers gave him a few weeks ago and displaying to the alert game warden a hunter's license for which he had just paid $15 in East St. Louis.

Rube hired a boat, rowed where ducks were plentiful and shot seven. Then, as no more ducks appeared, he commenced peppering mudhens.

After he had killed several of these gamy but not toothsome birds he saw a distress signal from a boat several hundred rods away. He rowed to the place and found Charles Stein struggling to get J. C. Kennedy back in the boat, from which the latter had fallen into the water.

Kennedy was clinging to the side of the boat, which dipped water every time he tried to climb in, and Stein, almost exhausted, was in danger of being spilled into the lake with his companion. The spot was in the deepest water of the lake.

"I'll show 'em I'm a pinch hitter," vowed Waddell, and, rowing alongside, he steadied the other boat and, at the great risk of capsizing both boats, helped Kennedy back into his craft.

"Have one on me," said the dripping Kennedy, who is a well-known East Side railroad agent, when the three had rowed to the bank near a lakeside tavern.

"Your money's all wet," remonstrated George Edward, and he brought down a bill on the bar with the mighty left hand which has struck out its hundreds.

OMAHA SURGEON IS SHOT TO DEATH AT DOOR OF HIS HOME

Dr. Frederick T. Rustin Mysteriously Slain in Early Morning as He Returned From City.

WIFE FOUND HIM DYING AND ACCOUNTS PUZZLE POLICE

At First She Said He Lay on Porch and Spoke to Her, Later She Told of Finding Him Inside the Door Sometime After Hearing Shot.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 2.—Dr. Frederick T. Rustin, a leading surgeon of the West, and brother of the late Henry Rustin, creator of the electrical display at the St. Louis World's Fair, was shot to death at his home as he returned at 3 a. m. today, after spending the night downtown listening to election returns.

Mrs. Rustin, who reached him before he died, told the police at first that she found him sitting in a chair on the porch, and later she said he lay in the reception hall. The police are investigating her statements.

Dr. Rustin was shot only once, the bullet entering his abdomen. No revolver has been found, which precludes the possibility of suicide.

In telling of finding her husband on the porch, Mrs. Rustin said that as she ran to him, he exclaimed, "A man has shot me," and then became unconscious, dying in half an hour.

Robbery Is Scouted.

Later, according to the police, she said she found her husband lying in the front hall of their home, groaning. The police found no blood on the porch or the chairs there, but found a pool of blood in the front hall.

It was suggested to the police that Rustin might have been slain by burglars, but the house was not robbed and there were no indications that burglars had tried to enter.

Persons living next door to Dr. Rustin heard no shots fired or any outcry.

Regarding the story of the discovery of her husband's body, Mrs. Rustin said today:

"I heard a shot early this morning but paid no attention to it, thinking it was some one shooting at a cat. At the time I was in bed upstairs and my three children were in the next room.

Wife Tells of Search.

"Later I missed Dr. Rustin and started to search for him. When I reached the top of the stairs I heard him groan and then saw him lying just inside the front door. I called a doctor and called the police."

Dr. Rustin was a well-kniwn football player during his college days and played on the Yale team.

Dr. Rustin's brother, Wilkens Rustin, died several years ago from an injury sustained while being initiated into a secret fraternity at Yale. The other brother, Henry, was electrical engineer of the Buffalo and Omaha expositions and the St. Louis World's Fair. The father, Capt. Charles B. Rustin, perished in Alaska three years ago.

Dr. Rustin was graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale University, in 1895, and was captain of the baseball nine in that year.

THINGS SURELY ARE HAPPENING IN ALTON TOWN

ALTON, Ill., Sept. 2.—Things have been happening right smart close together in this town.

Otto Unterbrink won't play the oompah horn in the White Hussar band for awhile. He played at a burying in our cemetery and after the funeral he laid his horn down on the grass. The mouthpiece touched some poison ivy and the next time Otto played the horn his face broke out. Now he can't pucker his lips. They are looking for a substitoot.

Henry Herrin was driving through our beautiful city smoking a pipe. A spark flew back in the wagon and set fire to a bale of hay. When Henry felt his back getting hot he unhitched the horse and escaped. The wagon burnt up.

Another sad occurrence is the shortage of beer bottles here. They haven't got any more at the glassworks because so many have been ordered to supply the Sunday trade in St. Louis. Now the local connoisseurs have to worry along on keg beer till the lidlifters across the river send back the bottles.

Our colored citizens, many of whom recently came here from Springfield for their health, are wearing broad smiles these days. Farmers in the American Bottoms report that the crop of watermelons is so large that it doesn't pay to haul them off the patches. They have put up signs in the African language: "Take one."

That 'possum that was hanging around Nixon's cigar store was caught last night. Mr. Nixon is going to make a pet out of it. 'Possums are not as plentiful as watermelons this season.

MOTHER OF 16-POUND BABY AT 14

Father of Prize Infant Is Only 4 Years His Wife's Senior.

A 16-pound baby was born to Mrs. Ella Grusber, who is only 14 years old and her husband, Herman, who is only four years his wife's senior.

The child was born Sunday, Aug. 30, and both mother and child are doing well. The Grusbers live at 2701 Lilly avenue.

ROMANCE, BORN IN LAW OFFICE, ENDS IN COURT

A law office romance ended in the divorce court Wednesday, when Robert F. Moloney, an attorney connected with the firm of Boyle & Priest, counsel for the United Railways, filed suit against Guillelmine E. Moloney, who was a stenographer in the same office before their marriage three years ago.

In his petition Moloney says that he was 23 years old and his wife nine years his senior at the time of their marriage. She was a divorcee, he states, and had a daughter 10 years old.

Almost immediately after becoming his wife, Moloney says, his former stenographer commenced to dictate to him, and to conduct and direct his affairs, treating him with contempt and calling him a fool and a child.

Soon after their return from their honeymoon journey to Detroit, he relates, she asked him to go out at night and mail a letter which she had written. It was dark and rainy outside, and he refused. For this, he charges, she struck him "a violent and powerful blow in the face."

Trouble then arose, the petition recites, over the residence property at 5635 Bartmer avenue, which he owns, and which she still occupies. He charges that she tried to make him deed the property to her, to exchange it for other realty to be held in their joint name, and that she once arranged such a deal, and when he declined to complete it with his signature, that she left him and remained away for several days.

As an argument for the proposed deal, he says, she told him he had no business sense.

She commanded him, he relates, to give her his salary every month, and when he refused, nagged him intolerably.

Threatened to Whip Him.

He also charges that she threatened to have a man visit the house and whip him, to whip him herself and to cause him the loss of his position, and that she made active efforts to the latter end. His petition is filed through the firm by which he is employed.

HUTTIG CALLS BANK GUARANTY ONE-SIDED PLAN

Financier Asks Why Institutions Shouldn't Have Loans Insured Also.

HERESY, SAYS WADE

Declares System Would Be Fatal to All but the National Banks.

St. Louis members of the Currency Commission of the American Bankers' Association agree with other St. Louis bankers in the opinion that W. J. Bryan's bank guaranty plan is not a good thing. Charles H. Huttig, president of the Third National Bank, and Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., are members of this commission. Statements of their views, written by them for the Post-Dispatch, are printed below:

BY CHARLES H. HUTTIG,
President, Third National Bank.

The advocates of Government guarantee of bank deposits are no doubt influenced to some extent by the superficial attractiveness of the proposition, from the standpoint of its specious liberality to the depositing public. To those who get under the crust the subject broadens and presents many interesting economic phases.

To begin with, the fact is generally overlooked that the loans of all the banks of the country create most of the deposits. That is to say, the deposits of the financial institutions are created by the loans they carry, and the cash in their vaults; it follows if all of the loans were liquidated, the aggregate of the country's deposits would shrink to an amount equal to the cash in all of the national and State banks and trust companies.

One-Sided, Says Huttig.

It would seem from this that a plan to guarantee all deposits would carry with it an unfair and one-sided protection. A borrower secures a loan of $100,000 from a bank and leaves a portion of it to his credit with either the bank from which he borrows or some other bank. The Government then guarantees this deposit, protecting this borrower against loss through the failure of his bank.

On the other hand, the bank which loaned him the $100,000 has no such protection notwithstanding the fact that the deposit itself was created by the loan. ... we are going into the guaranteeing business, why not have another law to guarantee banks against loss on their outstanding loans?

The Government guarantee of deposits really means co-insurance of deposits, and indirectly the depositor must pay for the protection extended. The cost of the insurance becomes an item of expense to the bank which will be included in the general expense account.

Would Stop Discrimination.

There would be no occasion for the depositor to discriminate between a well-managed bank with ample capital, conducted by experienced, conservative officials, and one under poor and reckless management.

The inexperienced and incompetent would be encouraged to start banks because of their ability to secure deposits as easily as the old and well-established institutions. One of the valuable assets of a bank is the good will that grows out of years of adherence to safe and sound banking methods. Such a record gives ample assurance to the public of the safety of the institution as a depository, and the regard of right-doing and proper methods is a constantly increasing deposit account.

Under the Government guarantee plan, the depositor could put his money in the first bank he came to, thus inviting men to go into the business who have absolutely no qualifications in that direction, and who would play havoc in the loan department of the bank and on whose reliability and stability in times of distress and panic, no dependence could be placed.

Increased Cost to Public.

"As I understand the plan, the various banks would be required to pay an insurance tax in a ratio proportionate to the amount of their deposits. This cost of insurance would not in the ordinary course of business management come out of the profits of the bank, any more than does fire or other insurance, consequently either a lower rate of interest would be paid to depositors by the banks or the merchants and manufacturers would have to pay a higher rate on their borrowings.

"The Government having no direct jurisdiction over State banks and trust companies, could enforce such a taxation law against national banks only; this disarranging and antagonizing the general banking relations that have grown up under separate systems and laws.

"I am quite sure that the Monetary Commission appointed at the last session of Congress will not find such a visionary and impracticable scheme as the Government guarantee of deposits in any of the civilized countries of the world."

BY FESTUS J. WADE.
President, Mercantile Trust Co.

A political heresy is due in this country every four years, it seems. Some of us remember the fiat money and the subtreasury. Most of us have vivid recollections of 16 to 1. Over anti-imperialism we fail to become agitated; that was an academic issue.

The government ownership idea was premature and was withdrawn. And now we have bank deposit guaranty advanced with all of the usual enthusiasm born of the vote-catching season, and with all of the familiar, cheerful disregard for practicability and for safe and sound business principles.

"Bank deposit guaranty belongs in the category with those other political heresies. It is advocated by the same class of political theorists. It is wrong in theory. It would not work in practice. It is the new side door to paternalism in government, the latest approach to Socialism.

Four Kinds of Banking.

We have in this country four kinds of banking institutions, with deposits divided about as follows:

Savings banks	$3,700,000,000
Trust companies	3,100,000,000
State and private banks	4,300,000,000
National banks	5,000,000,000

We have developed these different kinds of banks to meet the varied requirements of different classes of depositors. That the different kinds are needed to do the business of the country is evident from the division of deposits among them.

The application of the bank deposit guaranty means disruption, financial revolution, to three of the four kinds of banks. Trust companies, savings banks and state banks are organized under state charters. How can Congress extend a blanket guaranty over these state institutions?

The three great kinds of financial institutions operating under State charters and State control hold nearly three-fourths of the deposits of the country. In numbers of depositors and in amounts of invested capital, they far surpass the national banks. The platform of Mr. Bryan declares that national banks shall be required to establish a guaranty fund for the payment of depositors of any insolvent bank under an equitable system which shall be available to all banking institutions wishing to use it. That is easy to say on paper and can be talked about in glittering generalities. In all of m reading and thinking a glimmer of the "equitable system" has not yet developed.

Burden to the Banks.

"The deposits of every national bank are now protected by the double liability on all stockholders. To add an additional tax would be a burden on the national banker. It would not prevent panics or lessen the fear of depositors in time of financial disturbance.

"If the legislation contemplated by this bank deposit guarantyism was enacted, it would demand entire revision of the national banking system. Prohibition against loaning money on real estate, heavy cash reserves, prohibition against purchases of bonds other than Government, would have to be changed to meet this new theory of banking. This could not be done without reconstruction of our banking system and attendant disturbance.

"A financial force bill is what the bank deposit guaranty scheme should be called. Its effect would be to take from the States the present banking systems and regulations; to 'force' every savings bank, State bank and trust company into the national banking system.

"In possibilities for evil the bank deposit guaranty in 1908 is as dangerous as 16 to 1 was in 1896.

Total to Savings Banks.

"Nine-tenths of the deposits in savings banks are secured by bonds and mortgages which are not recognized by the national banking act. The bank deposit guaranty would break up the present savings bank system. The 8,500,000 savings bank depositors will have none of this fallacy when they consider it. They will reject it as they did the ratio of 16 to 1 in 1896.

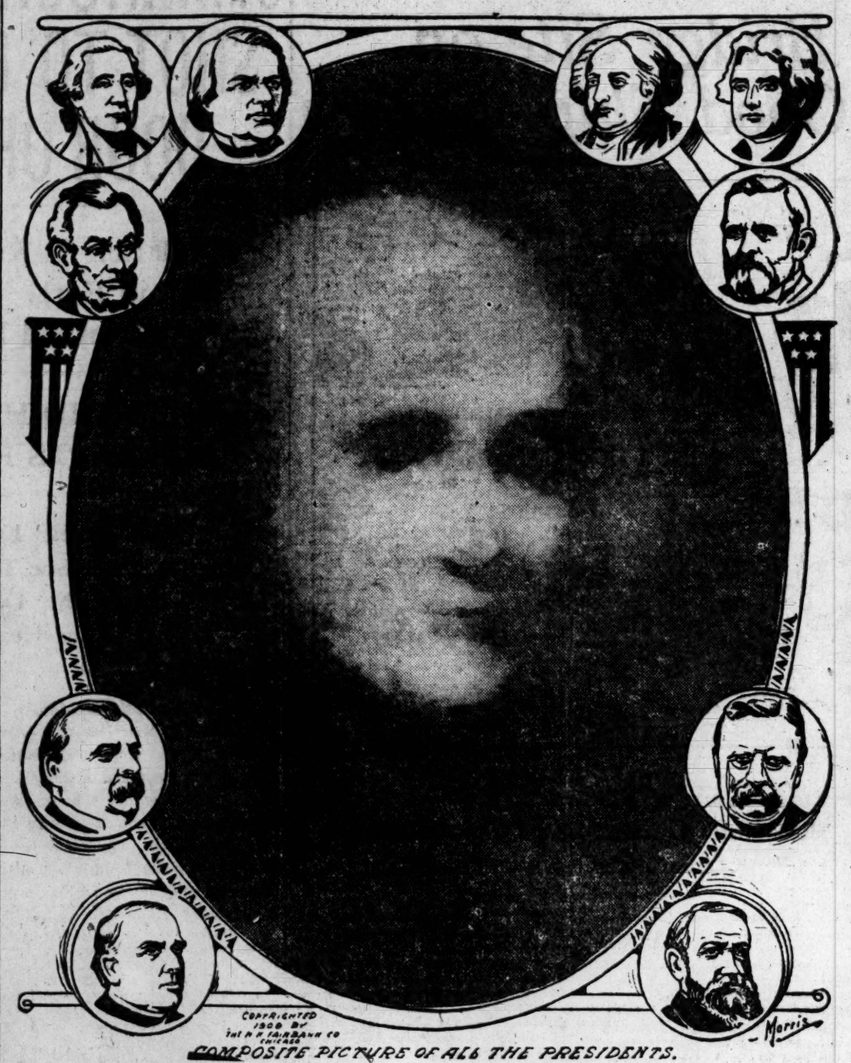

"Depositors have in State banks and trust companies $7,400,000,000, which is 50 per cent more than the deposits in national banks. They put their money in these institutions because they prefer them to national banks. They would never accept the plan which would attempt to drive all of these institutions to the national banking system.

"We want no financial scheme which will lessen the individual responsibility of each banking institution; which will encourage imprudent bankers at the expense of the prudent; which will give cover to high finance at the cost of sound banking. Those would be some of the effects of a Government blanket bank deposit guaranty.

"When we are sick we send for a doctor. When we face litigation we employ a lawyer. When we need spiritual consolation we go to church. Why, in the name of common sense do we look to the vote-seeking candidate to teach us finance?"

Whom Does It Look Like? This Is All the Presidents Combined by Photography

COMPOSITE PICTURE OF ALL THE PRESIDENTS.

Remarkable Picture Containing the Facial Characteristics of Every American Executive, Was Made by Joseph Gray Kitchell.

HERE is the concentrated essence of presidentialism, or, if you please, a harmonic blend of the Federalist, Whig, Republican and Democratic parties candidates, who have run and won a seat in the great chair. The picture, a composite of the faces of all the presidents, was made by Joseph Gray Kitchell, a photographer, who made the famous composite Madonna.

Out of the twenty-five presidents in office from 1789 to 1908, 14 of them were smooth faced, three were cleanly shaven except for sideburns (two of which were sparce or scanty); one wore mustache and sideburns; two wore mustaches without other facial adornment; one, whiskers without mustache, and four wore full whiskers and mustaches.

It will thus be seen that the proportion of smooth-faced to all others was 14 to 25, and that the preponderance of cleanly-shaven is strongly exhibited in the composite.

Ten Wore Soft Collars.

Four wore stocks in the fashion of the early nineteenth century; ten wore soft pturned collars and 11, the more modern neckwear, beginning with the loose upturned style and advancing by degrees to the prevalent fashion of the times from Lincoln's term to the present day.

The suggestions of each are more or less plainly visible in the composite.

From a study of the portraits and by consulting the historical descriptions of their facial characteristics, Kitchell learned that in the pulilary distance (from center of the retinas in the eyes) the variance was from two and one-fourth inches to two and five-eighths inches; also that the distance from the supercilliary ridge (or the brow line) to the hair line and the breadth of forehead (measured from center of temporal bones) exceed considerably similar measurements of the average man in professional life today.

Mustaches Conceal Mouth.

The absence of sharp definition in the mouth of the Composite picture is due to the confusion caused by the influence of these portraits of president who wore moustaches and whiskers, which more or less completely covered the lips—this want of sharpness being inseparable from the process which made the Composite possible.

The indistinct lines around the head, conveying false contours, define principally the hair boundaries of those who wore wigs, pompadours and puffs in vogue during several administrations, also the negligee style affected by Buchanan, Filmore and Tyler.

The impossibility of obtaining full-face views of all the presidents compelled Kitchell to work from three-quarter photos, and added great difficulties to an already exacting task.

Face Is Old School.

It is believed that this is the only Composite ever made from units composed of three-quarter views.

The face is decidedly that of the old school of courtly gentlemen, dignified, almost to austerity, yet kindly; liberal in view, yet exacting in details of policy or principle.

It does not appear to resemble markedly any individual president, and several critics, who have had the privilege of studying it before this publication, ventured the opinion that it bore in its composite unity, characteristic elements that strongly suggested two of the most famous of American statesmen—Benjamin Franklin and Daniel Webster.

How Picture Was Made.

By the use of a simple but ingenious apparatus in making the photograph, the eyes, noses and mouths were brought to a uniform scale and accurate register, thus facilitating superimposition during printing.

The system adopted was that by which generally similar portraits were grouped in separate classes, each picture in a class was photographed successfully on a plate that became the Composite negative of its group, and, after each class was similarly treated, the prints from each negative thus obtained afforded the material for the final Composite negative.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE ELECTROCUTED

BY JOHN BRANDA.

I did'nt know there was any electricity in the rim of the manhole. When I started to climb out of the pit I put my weight on the handle of the iron borer and took hold of the rim of the manhole.

Then I felt as if I had been hit on the back of my head with something big and heavy. There were sharp pains in my arms and feet. My muscles tightened up and I shook all over, fast, like a riveter on the big buildings. My back felt like it was being twisted. I thought my blood vessels must burst.

I felt like I was in a nightmare when I tried to yell. I don't know whether any sound came from my lips. I tried to pull myself free, but again it was like the nightmare. I was held down by some irresistible force.

I couldn't see anything, but I felt as though I was being stabbed all over the body with red hot daggers, now here and now there, quick and sharp. There were peculiar sensations, like going apart and then coming together again, and I felt that it must be the life leaving my body. Then I couldn't hear anything nor see anything, and lost all memory until I woke up in the hospital.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—John Branda, a strong young man, was shocked by 2400 volts of alternating electrical current yesterday. His body was given over to the strong play of this current for 15 minutes, a much longer period than the weaker current is applied to those put to death in the electric chair.

By all the tests applied by the State in legal electrocutions, the man was dead. The tests were applied by Dr. Roberts of the Hudson Street Hospital, after the limp body had been taken from an electrically charged manhole. Dr. Roberts listened in vain with a stethoscope for the faintest beat of the heart. The pulse was gone. There was no bodily heat; there was not even any moisture to be detected about the nostrils.

Dr. Roberts ordered the body placed in an ambulance and had the driver dash to the hospital at a gallop. During the journey the doctor applied artificial respiration, but had made no noticeable progress when the hospital was reached.

Brought Back From Death.

The hospital attendants worked over the man for half an hour with vigorous energy. Their efforts were redoubled when there was a slight flicker of the eyelid. Then the pulse slowly returned and in a few minutes he began to breathe unaided. Today Branda is walking about his home, ill from the shock and burns, but well on the way to recovery.

Dr. Peter J. Gibbons, who has maintained that persons legally executed by electricity are not really killed, but shocked into a state of suspended animation, said that the calling back from seeming death of Branda did not surprise him. He said: "He was no more killed than any man who goes to the electric chair is killed. The same treatment applied to Branda would bring back to life any man taken from the chair and pronounced dead."

Shocked by 2400 Volts.

Branda is a street railway laborer. He was operating a lever borer with a long iron handle in a pit, and at a signal from the foreman, tried to lift himself out. With one hand on the handle of the lever borer he grasped the edge of the iron manhole with the other. Instantly his body became a link in the electrical current of the railway system.

Under the 2400 volts of alternating current his muscles tightened up and he was powerless to move. His eyes seemed to be starting from his head. The foreman tried to drag him free. The moment he touched Branda's body he was rendered almost unconscious by the shock. Other workmen attempted to render aid and were hurled away. Finally, with long wooden beams, the body of Branda was pried from the manhole.

WORLD'S FAIR SITE IS STILL UNDER GUARD

Councilman Lambert Starts Investigation Into Park Restoration Delay.

WORK MOVING SLOWLY

Council Names Committee to Make Inquiry to Fix Responsibility.

Councilmen Lambert, Thomson and Fitzsimmons are going to try to find out why the part of Forest Park used for the World's Fair has not been restored and turned back to the city. They were appointed a committee for the purpose at Tuesday evening's meeting of the City Council, following the adoption of a resolution offered by Mr. Lambert.

The requirement of the ordinance granting the use of the park was that it should be returned to the city in a restored condition within six months after the close of the Fair. The Fair closed Dec. 1, 1904.

Mr. Lambert was brought to a sudden realization of the delay Sunday when he tried to drive his automobile through that part of the park. He was stopped by a World's Fair watchman and turned back.

$100,000 Improvements Suggested.

A year ago the Exposition company sent a letter to the Board of Public Improvements announcing their readiness to turn over the park, but Park Commissioner Scanlan said it had not been restored and it was not accepted. He suggested improvements. The Exposition company expressed its willingness to make the improvements, although the estimated cost was $100,000.

It is supposed that the Exposition company has been at work on the improvements since.

Mr. Scanlan suggested that more trees were needed, that temporary bridges spanning the River des Peres should be replaced by permanent ones, that open sewers should be converted into regular ones, that the banks of the river where there has been caving should be graded and sodded, and that the roadways should be straightened and paved.

Wanted Roadway Improved.

He also insisted that the roadway of the intramural electric line should be removed and leveled or converted into a driveway. During the past two weeks Mr. Scanlan has been looking over the park to see how far his recommendations have been carried out.

The excuse given by the Exposition officials for delay in fixing up the roadways and planting trees is that this work can only be done at favorable seasons.

The delay in turning the park over has been the subject of half a dozen resolutions in the Council, but none of them seem to have produced any effect.

MRS. CHERRY'S LAWYERS BEATEN AFTER SPEAKING

hiding in one of the rooms. He was released on a bond signed by Cherry.

The situation became so grave that Judge Eby, who presided at the trial, left his home early this morning and urged the groups gathered on the street corners to avert further disturbances.

"The Deputy Sheriff made a mistake when he released Purcell," said Judge Eby. "He is the man who should have been arrested."

Warrants charging Purcell, Russell and Hustead with assault with attempt to kill were issued this morning.

Crowd Hears Arguments.

The arguments of counsel in the divorce and damage case crowded the Courthouse last night. It is fair week and an extra large number of people were looking for entertainment.

The beauty and fashion of Paris were in the courtroom. They were frilled and starched, and the scene was one of lingerie dresses and millinery.

About the only woman in town who was not present was the woman on whose account all the talk was about—Mrs. Cherry.

Judge Eby gave each side two hours in which to present their arguments.

Cherry, the defendant, sat crumpled up in a chair and paled and flushed alternately while the lawyers of the opposition poured the vitriol into the gaping wounds they had already opened.

He was called some pretty rough names and every time one of them was handed to him he scowled or winced.

Decision This Week.

At the conclusion of the arguments Judge Eby announced that he would deliver his decision during this term of court, which ends this week.

James P. Boyd, senior counsel for Mrs. Cherry, concluded the arguments for her, and as he finished a cheer went up, which meant sympathy for the woman in the case and the reverse for Cherry, who crouched lower in his chair at the sound of it. Judge Eby stopped the noise sternly and adjourned court.

Senator F. W. McAllister opened for Mrs. Cherry. He argued from the letters which Cherry addressed to her that he called her by his name and, in fact, introduced her to Uncle Sam as his wife.

VILLAGE FAILS TO AWAKEN AT NELSON'S CALL

St. Louisan Abandons Profit-Sharing Colony When Town Takes No Interest.

Dispatches from Dublin, Ind., say that "Homecroft," the headquarters house of a profit-sharing factory colony, which N. O. Nelson, St. Louis philanthropist, undertook to establish there, has been sold and the project abandoned.

Homecroft was expected to work the rejuvenation of Dublin. At first the villagers responded with interest to the efforts of Mr. Nelson, and the prospects were flattering, but they proved unequal to sustained co-operation with Mr. Nelson and the enterprise waned, and the village lapsed into the lethargy which had been its wont.

Miss Flora Brown's zeal for the betterment of the village was the cause of Mr. Nelson becoming interested. She was born in the town, was for eight years a public school teacher and was finally, after the death of her father, the Universalist pastor, appointed postmistress.

For years she quietly visited the sick and the poor and studied the needs of the village. She hoped some day to do something for the general good of the community.

The Rev. J. W. Caldwell was sent from St. Louis to take charge temporarily of the Universalist Church. He became ill. He had been associated with Mr. Nelson in social settlement work in St. Louis. Mr. Nelson went to see him. The minister had learned of Miss Brown's desire to better conditions in the town.

He told Mr. Nelson about it and the St. Louisan talked to her about the plan, and was so impressed with her purpose that he told her to go ahead. He bought 10 acres on the edge of town, on part of which was the old Nathan Huddleston homestead. It has been renovated and thrown open to the people as a social rendezvous and named "Homecroft."

There were assembly rooms, reading rooms, study rooms, baths and a gymnasium for the convenience of the people of the village.

Parents Hunt Missing Boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gower have asked the Post-Dispatch to find their 14-year-old son, Fred, who left home three months ago. The Gowers live at 1408 Clinton street. Mrs. Gower thinks that boys in the neighborhood induced her son to leave home.

BABY SWALLOWS TIN CHAIR; QUICK TRIP SAVES LIFE

Father Requisitions Passing Wagon and Rushes to Hospital Where Toy Is Extracted.

Only quick action by her father saved 2-year-old Vera Kelly of 810 North Seventeenth street from choking to death Wednesday morning.

The child was playing on the floor with some tin toys. She swallowed a little tin chair. Her mother heard the child suddenly gasping and saw her face growing dark. The mother screamed and the father, rushing into the room, took in the situation at a glance.

He picked up the child and rushed for the door. Outside was a delivery wagon, whose driver was at a nearby doorstep delivering a parcel.

The father jumped in and, holding the girl in one arm, drove the horse at a gallop with the other to the City Dispensary.

Dr. Freudenstein worked rapidly with surgical instruments and soon extracted the tin toy from the child's throat.

The child apparently has suffered no ill effects from the accident.

SCHRANTIMEIER MUST RETURN

"Sassed" Judge O'Hallaron in Court and Is Rearrested.

When acting Judge O'Hallaron in the Dayton Street Police Court fined Frank Schrantimeier $25 for disturbing the peace of Mrs. Schrantimeier Wednesday morning, the defendant shouted, in a voice that shook the courtroom, "I will appeal."

As he walked off toward the prisoners' cage Schrantimeier made uncomplimentary remarks about the court attaches. Judge O'Hallaron ordered him rearrested on a charge of disturbing the peace in a public place.

"Gee, will I have to come back here tomorrow?" was the prisoner's only comment. Schrantimeier gave the name "Ford" when arrested.

EAST SIDE POLICE FOOLED BY A TEN-YEAR OLD BOY

Claude McGinness, 10 years old, appeared at the East St. Louis Police Station Monday and said he had walked all the way from Murphysboro, Ill., in search of his father, who works in a coal mine. He said his mother was dead and he had been living with his grandfather in Murphysboro.

The whole force worked on the case at odd times, but failed to find a trace of the boy's father. Finally they sent Claude to Murphysboro.

Tuesday Claude's mother, who lives at 7½ Lyon avenue, called at the Police Station. She said Claude had disappeared after she gave him 50 cents. The police declined to send Claude a ticket back to East St. Louis.

The boy's father works in a packing plant.

CURTAINS RISE ON NEW SEASON NEXT SUNDAY

Olympic, Century, Garrick and Grand Then Open Doors for 1908-09.

INITIAL OFFERINGS

Plays Coming to Other Houses and Closing Bills of the Gardens.

THE St. Louis theatrical season of 1908-09 begins next Sunday, when curtains rise at the Olympic, Century, Garrick and Grand Opera House, in addition to those theaters already open.

"Three Twins," the successful New York musical comedy, will be the Olympic offering. It is said to be brightly amusing, with Victor oMrley as leading comedian and the little "Yama Girls" as one of its big features. The book is by Charles Dickson, music by Karl Hoschna, and lyrics by O. A. Hauerbach. The first act shows a seaside summer hotel, the second a sanitarium for nervous people. A big chorus, a number of novel scenic effects and many dances and tableaux are promised.

James O'Neil in a new play entitled "The Abbe Bonaparte" will be the Century's opener. The play has a historic background, its story is placed in a little Corsican fishing village in the time of the First Napoleon, and it tells of the fortunes of a foundling left by its mother in the Abbe's orchard, the plot hinging upon the confused identity of two children under the Abbe's charge. Natural sentiment and human humor are combined, a number of children are introduced, and, in the venerable and lovable old Abbe Bonaparte, Mr. O'Neil is said to have a character finely suited for his portrayal.

The Garrick makes a brilliant return to high-class drama with Minnie Dupree in "The Road to Yesterday," a whimsical, poetic play that was seen here last season and made a pleasing hit. The first and last acts are laid in modern times, but in the second the characters are transported 300 years into the past, the story being a delicate satire on the "swashbuckling" era. Miss Dupree does charming work as "the little girl lost in a dream," and will be supported by an excellent company. Melville Ellis has written special music for the play. The Garrick has been redecorated throughout and will present a beautiful appearance.

The Grand Opera House will begin its season at Sunday's matinee with a riot of fun and music, "The District Leader," one of last season's hits. It is full of bright comedy and tuneful melodies, and was written and composed by Joseph E. Howard. Its story is told in three acts, showing the Hoffman House lobby, a street in the Chinese quarter of New York, and a mansion on Riverside Drive. A big and capable supporting company, including a beautiful chorus, is announced.

"Camille" has been so successful at West End Heights this week that it will be repeated Sunday afternoon and evening, closing Mabel Montgomery's long engagement. The stock company, headed by Frederick Montague, will end its season on Labor Day (Monday), with special matinee and evening performances of "The Lost Paradise," the best labor play of recent years. This has been the most successful season in the Heights' history.

"Panhandle Pete," the excruciatingly funny musical comedy based on George McManus' cartoons in the Post-Dispatch and New York World, begins a week's engagement at Havlin's next Sunday afternoon. Walter Wilson will play the title role, supported by a big and competent company. This play scored one of the leading hits at Havlin's last season.

"The Spirit of Paul Doon" is this week's bill.

Oliver White, a St. Louis boy, will be in evidence at the American next week, when his new playlet, "Superstition," will be presented by Charles Bowser, Edith Hinkle and Frederick E. Duff. Other features are Beatrice McKenzie and the Walter Shannon company, Josephine Sabel, Schrode and Mulvey, Paul LaCroix, Four Brown Brothers and Doc. Keeley, Abel and Irwin, Bressely Sisters and the kinodrome.

Ida Fuller is this week's headliner.

For the closing week of the Suburban season, beginning Sunday night, James K. Hackett will appear in "Don Caesar's Return," a romantic drama of keen interest. He will be supported by Miss Mabel Roebuck, Arthur Hoopa and Edward Boring of his own company, and the entire Suburban stock.

"The Crisis" is this week's bill.

"Sergeant Kitty," now being played at Delmar, is the season's closing offering. Performances will be given next Sunday and Monday (Labor Day) evenings, but no matinees. After the close of the theater season the garden will be kept open up to and including Sunday, Sept. 13, with free concerts by Bafunno's Band, moving picture show, roller rink, restaurant and other attractions.

Mortimer H. Thaise's Rollickers come to the Standard for the week beginning next Sunday afternoon, appearing in burlesque and vaudeville.

The Empire Show is this week's offering.

George Hillmann and his nine Red-Skin's Napanees are the topliners on Mannion's bill this week, the season ending next Sunday night. Other features are Jules Held, impersonator; Frits Hustonz, cartoonist; Julain and Dyer, ring experts, and the Mannionscope. Four gold medals will be awarded to the best acts Sunday evening.

The City Sports and Big Sensation Co. come to the Gayety next week, beginning with Sunday's matinee, in burlesque and vaudeville.

The Blue Ribbon Girls are the current attraction.

Sands of Busy Broadway as Good as Seashore for Many Street Urchins of St. Louis, Marguerite Martyn Finds Build Forts and Castles in City's Heart and Get as Much Enjoyment as Do Children of Rich at Ocean Side.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

HAVE you, the many of you who fret because you cannot go to the seaside or the mountains, made the most of the opportunities for enjoyment, rest and recreation offered at your own door?

For, if you haven't you are not as wise in this one respect as are certain 10-year-old kids whom I know.

Right in the heart of this city, in the middle of Broadway, to be exact, just halfway between the busy corners of Pine and Chestnut streets, some small folks have discovered a deep sandbank, out of which they get as much fun as some other little folks do at a real seashore.

How they discovered it in the midst of the miniature inferno which Broadway just now represents, is accounted for by the fact that sand piles attract small boys just as water does ducks.

Paved With Good Intentions.

No doubt the millennium will find Broadway a perfectly paved street. Meanwhile the constant efforts to make it so always remind me of the good intentions another place is said to be paved with. There are deep pits, subterranean passages, twisted car tracks and every other thing which seems an obstacle to progress.

But during the lull between the sale of morning and midday papers, these days, some small men are seen to drop the urgent business of earning their next day's bread and butter and regale themselves upon this sand pile. Can't you remember the attraction of a sand pile? The wonderful feats of burying yourself alive; the long roadways over deep moats up to great castles upon steep mountain sides which you engineered and constructed?

Miniature Forts in Broadway.

Of necessity this sand is not of the glistening sort you recall. It is, in fact, rather gravelly, and the sky is not of the clear blue of the seashore or the riverside, but it is a good composition to build castles and intrenchments and fortifications, for I have seen these things materialize in the middle of Broadway. No one could conceive more discouraging environment, the noises of the hammer of iron upon steel; the clash of resounding metal upon stone. There are ponderous drays and cars bearing down upon them, but apparently for the time being these small business men are oblivious to everything outside their kidhood.

You will say it is because they don't know that they are playing at the bottom of a deep stone gorge; that it is because they never have seen beyond the walls and pavements of the scorching city, that they can be content. You will say that theirs is the bliss of ignorance. Yes, but they are wiser than you in making use of the resources which are within them. The pity of it is that these faculties of concentration, imagination and unstudied philosophy have been dissipated on the road to what you think is reality—the things beyond your reach.

PREMIER SAYS AUSTRALIA SHOULD HAVE OWN FLEET

Declares Presence of American Battleships Teaches Lesson to Countrymen.

MELBOURNE, Sept. 2.—Speaking at the dinner tendered to Rear Admiral Sperry and the senior officers of the American battleship fleet at the Royal Yacht Club tonight, Alfred Deakin, the Premier, said:

"The appearance of the American fleet indicates that it is on no holiday cruise and the concession made by the American Government in sending the fleet here is perhaps the most generous made in recent times by one nation to another.

"The American battleships show the last word in the art of naval construction and the lesson to Australians is that as America was unable to take a first place in the world until the country had a first-class navy, because until then only able to protest verbally against outside injustice and injury, so Australia cannot be content to ultimately accept defense at any other hands than its own and should begin provision for its own navy in a modest way."

100 SALOON IN POOR DISTRICTS OUT OF BUSINESS

Mulvihill to Maintain Policy and Believes Other Saloons Will Close.

More than a hundred saloons in poor districts of St. Louis have either been denied a renewal of their licenses or quit business because of the stringent regulations imposed on them by Excise Commissioner Mulvihill. Mr. Mulvihill says that many more saloons will be closed in the same districts.

"In the district from Market street to Chouteau avenue and from Twelfth street to the river the people are not able to drink liquor and maintain themselves at the same time," said Mr. Mulvihill Wednesday.

"I have refused to reissue a large number of licenses in that quarter of the city. But there are still plenty of saloons left.

"In the northwest part of town, where many poor negroes live, in the settlement known as Dago Hill, in the southwestern part of the city, on Wash street and north of Washington avenue and west of Tenth street many saloons have been closed.

"I have discretion in the issuance of licenses, and I think it is wise and salutary to remove temptations from the path of those whose lives are already full enough of difficulties and hardships. I intend to continue this policy.

"In many sections of the city the legitimate profits of the saloon keepers were not sufficient. That condition prompted them to turn to unlawful methods of increasing their earnings. They permitted gambling, sold liquors to minors, allowed their places to become the rendezvous of hoodlums and violated the law requiring them to close all day Sunday and between 1 and 5 a. m. on week days.

"The result of this was that infringement of the law was mostly traceable to that class of saloons."

NIGHT NURSE

Kept in Perfect Trim by Right Food.

Nursing the sick is often very burdensome to the nurse.

Night nursing is liable to be even more exhausting from the fact that the demands of the system for sleep are more urgent during the night hours.

A Va. lady, called on to act as night nurse in the family, found the greatest support from the use of Grape-Nuts food. She says:

"Our acquaintance with Grape-Nuts began eight years ago. We bought the first package sold in this place, and although we began as skeptics we became converts to its striking food value.

"I used Grape-Nuts first, to sustain me when doing night nursing for a member of the family. I ate a teaspoonful at a time and by slowly chewing it I was able to keep awake and felt no fatigue.

"Soon I grew to like Grape-Nuts very much, and after our patient recovered I was surprised to find that I was not at all "worn out" on account of broken rest. My nerves were strong and steady and my digestion fine. This was the more surprising because I had always suffered with weak nerves and indigestion. My experience was so satisfactory that other members of the family took up Grape-Nuts with like results." "There's a Reason."

ROOSEVELT AND FOLK TICKET OF CHICAGO LEAGUE

"Second Term" Movement Names Missouri's Governor for Vice-Presidency.

IT IS NEWS TO HIM

He Says He Is Not a Candidate for the Place in Spite of Printed Appeal.

Just as Gov. Folk was getting a nice start as a candidate for the Senate, some men in Chicago have gone and nominated him for Vice-President. For President they have nominated a well-known citizen named Theodore Roosevelt.

"He who fights under this standard shall win," says a handsome circular, sent out by the Roosevelt Second Term League as announcement of the new ticket. But Gov. Folk does not seem to be impressed by his chances.

News to Gov. Folk.

"I never heard of it before," he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter when questioned by long distance telephone about the matter Wednesday. "I am not a candidate for Vice-President. Another national ticket could not be placed on the official ballot in this State now. Perhaps it could in some states. I don't know these Chicago men, and I have no idea what they are trying to do."

The circular, dated "Chicago, Sept. 1, 1908," opens its address "To the American Voters," by saying that the ticket was selected "on the advice of thousands of loyal citizens in 46 states of the Union." There is a paragraph of praise for Roosevelt, another for Folk and the prediction is made that "this non-partisan, American ticket" will commend itself to all except Federal office holders and others selfishly interested in the success of either of the old parties.

Local Leagues to Be Formed.

The circular then continues:

"We urge that local leagues be formed in September in every voting district throughout the Union, especially in the Southern States and the states of Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Missouri and New York. Organizers will be assigned or instructions for procedure for organizing will be sent upon application.

"The management of state and county fairs are urged to popularize their fairs by making arrangements to have one of our officers make an address on this subject which is so vitally and intensely interesting to 95 per cent of the American voters."

F. L. Bilger is named as chairman, and H. Jahns Jr. as secretary of the National Executive Committee.

TERMINAL ASKS USE OF STREETS IN 23 BLOCKS

President O'Reilly and City Council Oppose Grant Recommended by Commission.

The Terminal Railroad Association wants possession of streets and alleys along 23 city blocks. President O'Reilly of the Board of Public Improvements isn't inclined to approve the bill making the grant, and members of the City Council also are hostile.

The bill was sent to the Council by Mayor Wells. It had to be introduced by a member. President Forman of the Council called three times for a volunteer. Finally Councilman Fitzsimmons responded. Secretary Mockler announced, with emphasis, that the measure was presented "at the request of the Municipal Bridge and Terminals Commission."

O'Reilly and Mayor Wells are members of the Terminals Commission. O'Reilly says he didn't sign the message which accompanied the bill, because he "didn't want to."

O'Reilly Quotes Scott.

"The hand of Douglas is his own,'" said O'Reilly to a reporter, quoting Scott. "The document was sent to me before the Mayor signed it, but I decided that I didn't want to indorse the plan."

The Terminal Association promises, if the streets are turned over to it, to construct a subway under the Wabash, Missouri Pacific and Frisco tracks from Adams street to Papin street, at Compton avenue. After it is constructed it will have to be maintained by the city.

The association also announced that it would spend $3,000,000 in establishing new yards and depots on the "Ranken tract" and other property along the streets it wants vacated.

These streets, as named in the bill, lie between Ewing avenue on the east, the south line of the Missouri Pacific right of way on the south, Adams street and Manchester avenue on the north, and Grand avenue on the west.

CEMENT FOR THE CANAL COST GOVERNMENT $5,500,000

Contract for 4,500,000 Barrels Is Awarded to the Atlas Portland Company.

The Isthmian Canal Commission has awarded to the Atlas Portland Cement Company a contract to furnish 4,500,000 barrels of cement. The cement will be used in making the concrete walls of the Panama Canal.

This is the largest contract given in the cement industry. It will cost the United States about $5,500,000.

The contract provides that the shipments shall begin in September, and that they be made at a minimum rate of 2000 barrels a day, and a maximum of 10,000 barrels.

RANSOM POST WINS CHEERS IN PARADE OF THE G. A. R.

St. Louis Veterans March Before William H. Taft, Senator Foraker and Governor Harris.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 2.—With flags flying, bands playing, crowds cheering and a bright sky overhead, veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic for the forty-second time marched through the streets of an encampment city today.

At the official reviewing stand where stood William H. Taft, Republican candidate for President; Gov. Harris, Senator Foraker, Mayor Brand Whitlock and many other notables, the colors were dipped and each department commander joined Commander-in-Chief Burton in the stand.

Ransom Post of St. Louis, named by Gen. Sherman, in honor of the youngest Major-General in the Northern forces, who died of fever on the march to the sea, made an impressive appearance. They bore with them a prize banner earned in the encampment of 1900 at Chicago for making the best appearance in the parade.

POKED WITH A CURTAIN POLE, CURSES HUSBAND

Woman Sued for Divorce Tells of Hurling Clock and Other Things.

BLAMES HIS MOTHER

Mrs. Downey Takes Husband's Name From Baby When Suit Is Brought.

Mrs. Mattie E. Downey's first action after learning her husband had entered suit for divorce was to change the name of their 5-months-old baby, who, at his birth, was named Edward, after his father.

Until a satisfactory name is decided on Mrs. Downey said, the baby would be called Dottie, and she began calling him "Dottie" while she was awaiting the arrival of a deputy sheriff with the divorce papers, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Anna Welsh, 2902 Dickson street.

Mrs. Downey denied her husband was correct in his charge that she refused to prepare his breakfast and often gave him a nickel, telling him to go to a restaurant for the meal. She says she would have done it if he had given her money, but that she never had the nickel.

She says she was ill and fainted, dropping a bottle of toothache medicine at the time he said she tried to commit suicide.

Downey and his wife were married July 6, 1906. They have not lived together since July 31, 1908.

She said to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"One morning one of his friends came down to our house about 6 o'clock and Ed told me I would have to get up and get breakfast for him. I wouldn't do it, and he began poking me with a curtain pole. It was just in fun at first, but he got to poking pretty hard, and I got mad. There was a clock by the bed, and I threw it at him. He took the pieces up to his mother and she has kept them for souvenirs.

"I cursed him several times. No man can curse me without my giving it back. When he got too strong with his language I used to throw things at him.

"I don't recall those eight consecutive nights he says I kept him awake quarreling. We quarreled many nights. The whole trouble with us was too much mother-in-law.

"She always wanted him to go places with her family on Sundays. He usually went and left me at home. One Sunday I locked up his clothes, but they brought him some others. The clothes were too big for him."

HER STORE HIS GIFT

Offered $100 to Leave Her, He Refuses and Begs Reconciliation.

When he learned Wednesday that his young wife, who married him when she was 15 years old, and to whom he recently deeded one of his two drug stores, had filed suit for divorce, Louis J. Zauderer arose from a sick bed, hastened to her store at 1701 Carr street and pleaded with her for a reconciliation.

Mrs. Zauderer, before his visit, declared that she and her husband could never agree, and said that she intended to press her suit for her freedom and the custody of her 3-year-old boy, Edward.

Zauderer owns a drug store at Twenty-first and Carr streets. He says his wife's store, four blocks east, was his gift to her. It was made over to her, he says, one year ago, just before the time which she names in her divorce petition as the date of their separation.

Studied Pharmacy Together.

Mrs. Zauderer is 21 years old, and her husband is three years older. They are living in the same house at 1721 Carr street, and her mother, Mrs. Sachs, lives there also.

They were married in New York City in 1902, and studied pharmacy together after their marriage, both becoming qualified druggists.

Zauderer has been in poor health for some time, and has been in the care of Dr. Herkovitz, who is known in the neighborhood as a friend of both the Zauderers.

"I love my wife," said Zauderer Wednesday, "and it is not true that I ever struck her or that I drank to excess, as her petition says.

"Yesterday she offered to give me $100 if I would leave her, but I refused. I shall try to persuade her to forget her grievances and drop the suit."

RAMSEY TO BE PRESIDENT OF ANN ARBOR RAILROAD

Former Head of Wabash Is Elected to Directorate of Michigan System.

According to dispatches from New York, Joseph Ramsey jr., formerly president and general manager of the Wabash System, is to succeed Eugene Zimmerman as president of the Ann Arbor Railroad, Michigan's principal trunk line. Mr. Ramsey was elected to the directorate of the road at a meeting of stockholders Tuesday.

Railroad men say that Mr. Ramsey is an authority on the Ann Arbor, having made an exhaustive examination of the property several years ago, when he, as the representative of the Gould syndicate, purchased it for the purpose of linking it with the Wabash system.

Ramsey resigned from the Wabash about three years ago, following a controversy with George Gould regarding the construction of the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal property.

Mr. Ramsey formerly was general manager of the $50,000,000 St. Louis Terminal Association.

MISSING MAN BELIEVED HERE

Sister Says He Tired of Farm and Yearned for City Life.

Charles Hannibal, 24 years old, of Pleasant Plains, Ill., who has been missing from his home since Aug. 26, is believed to be in St. Louis. His sister, Mrs. Charles Bunsenmeyer, 3317 Missouri avenue, said her brother tired of farm life and said that one day he would go to the city to make his fortune.

Hannibal is described as 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing 160 pounds and wearing a dark blue suit, a white shirt, black hat and black patent leather shoes. He has black hair, black eyes and is of dark complexion.

MRS. MARY L. HORTON

MEXICAN WAR VETERAN SAVED BY DAUGHTER

Mrs. May L. Horton Discovers Fire in Time to Rescue Parents.

Chief Creecy and Other Neighbors Helped Save Part of Furniture.

Josiah C. Johnson, a Mexican War veteran, and his aged wife were driven from their home, 6632 Marmaduke avenue, by fire, at 1:30 a. m. Wednesday. They were assisted from the burning building by a daughter, Mrs. May L. Horton. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were sleeping in a rear room of the second floor. Mrs. Horton was sleeping in a second-floor room. A son, Clark W. Johnson, was sleeping on the first floor.

Mrs. Horton was aroused by the crackling of the ceiling in her room. She hurried to her parents and helped them out of the house.

Plaster was falling from the ceiling in Mr. Johnson's room and he and his wife left in their night clothes. On the way out Mrs. Horton waked her brother, who turned in an alarm.

Neighbors had seen the blaze by this time and a number of them, including Chief of Police Creecy who live a few doors away, and J. A. Watson of 6648 Marmaduke avenue, helped to remove several articles of furniture.

The house was of brick, three stories high and contained ten rooms. The fire had descended to the first floor by the time the engines arrived and the house was practically in ruins by the time the flames were extinguished. The damage to the house is estimated at $10,000 and to the furniture at $3000.

Mr. Johnson served in the Third Missouri Regiment in the Mexican War. He is 82 years old and his wife is 71. He retired from business as a stone, marble and brick dealer 12 years ago.

The Johnson family spent the remainder of the night at the home of Dennis Ryan, Ivanhoe and Odell avenues.

HEALTH INSPECTOR ACCUSED

Anthony Sarriziny, who, the police say, is an inspector for the Health Department, was arrested Tuesday evening on complaint of Mrs. Angelina Calcaterra of 5329 Shaw avenue. Mrs. Calcaterra charges that Sarriziny called at her home Aug. 28 and while inspecting the premises became engaged in conversation with her 6-year-old daughter.

He admired the child greatly and begged for a photograph of her, Mrs. Calcaterra says. While the mother was looking for a picture she says Sarriziny became unduly familiar with the child. Sarriziny denies the charge. The case will be heard in the Clark Avenue Police Court.

"THE MOTHER OF THE FOREST" BURNING IN BIG TREE GROVE

STOCKTON, Cal., Sept. 2.—A telephone message received here this morning from Murphys, Calaveras County, is to the effect that the forest fire has gotten into the Calaveras big tree grove.

The big tree known as "The Mother of the Forest," a monster sequoia, 327 feet high and 78 feet in circumference, has been burning all night. No other trees have caught fire thus far, but the greatest alarm is felt.

TRAVELING SALESMAN SAYS FAMILY HAS DISAPPEARED

Eugene Schock Appeals to Police to Find His Wife and Two Children.

When Eugene Schock, a traveling salesman, returned to St. Louis Wednesday after an absence of four months, instead of being greeted by the smiles of his wife and two children, he found the house in which they were supposed to be living occupied by strangers. Schock has asked the police to find his family.

When Schock left St. Louis in April his family lived at 4331 Fyler avenue, he told the police. He kept in communication with them for several weeks. The last letter he received from his wife said she was going to live with relatives at 720 Regina avenue, St. Louis County. She did not write to him again, Schock says, though he wrote to her.

Members of the family now occupying the Regina avenue house told Schock they knew nothing of his family. His wife's name is Emma, and his two children are Doretta, 5 years old, and Eugene, 3 years old.

NEGRO SAVED CHAFIN'S LIFE AND HE OWES DEBT TO RACE

Candidate Says Only State Prohibition Will Save Illinois Cities.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 2.—At a reception given to Eugene W. Chafin, prohibition candidate for President, a committee of negroes, headed by Ed Clayton, editor of a negro weekly, thanked him for saving the life of a negro State employe in the Springfield riots.

Mr. Chafin said he had been saved from drowning by a colored man when he was a boy and that he had owed the race a debt ever since.

In his speech Mr. Chafin said that local option in country districts is driving the disorderly element of Illinois to the cities. He prophesied that if the State does not go prohibition that there will be enough vicious men in Chicago to burn it to the ground within four years.

TIGHT LACING CAUSES WOMEN TO STEP OFF CAR BACKWARDS

Chicago Street Railway Expert Thinks They Have Found Reason for Many Accidents.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—That tight lacing makes women get off street cars backwards is the astounding discovery of street-car men here.

They declare experience has shown that women who lace tightly are invariably the ones who step off the wrong way. Fred C. Baer, superintendent of the Chicago city barns, declares tight lacing is responsible for most accidents.

A new device has been arranged in many cars to compel persons to face forward when alighting and thus permit the fair ones to lace to their heart's content, or disarrangement, without being injured when alighting from a car.

ACCUSED CUBAN POSTOFFICE OFFICIAL FOUND IN HAVANA

Rodriguez, Who Hails From Philadelphia, Was Disguised When Arrested.

HAVANA, Sept. 2.—Ricardo Rodriguez, Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Vouchers in the Havana Postoffice, when he disappeared a week ago, after a discovery of a shortage amounting to $52,135, was arrested last night. He was hiding and was disguised when the police found him.

Rodriguez is 70 years of age, and was employed for 10 years in the Philadelphia Postoffice, entering the Cuban service from that city at the time of the first American intervention.

According to the police, the thieving has been going on for some years. Sheets of stamps were abstracted from the original packages, which were then re-sealed, so that the taking of stock did not reveal the deficiency.

COUNTRY GIRL MAKES POLICE QUOTE POETRY

Her Story of Farm Work Starts Headquarters Men Reciting "Maud Muller."

"I would much rather work in the city for nothing but my clothes and board than go back to the farm and hook up horses and husk corn for the sake of having a home that I could call my own," said Anna Byer, 16 years old.

Anna ran away from her home in Pana, Ill., she says, to emancipate herself from drudgery. She is a Maud Muller in real life, and her experience made policemen who heard it quote the lines in Whittier's poem:

"But when she glanced to the far-off town,
White from its hill-slope looking down
The sweet song died, and a vague unrest
And a nameless longing filled her breast—
A wish that she hardly dared to own
For something better than she had known."

"If I had big brothers to do the manual labor I would not mind living on a farm," said the girl. "I like to do woman's work. I am not lazy.

Wants to Be a Servant.

"I have read a great deal about girls who work as servants in nice homes, and I fail to see anything in the employment that a girl need be ashamed of. If I could get a position with some good family I would feel just as respectable as my employers.

"I could fix myself up on my off-days, too, and people would not know whether I am a servant, saleswoman, stenographer or a lady of leisure. But on the farm it's different. Once a drudge always one. If a girl has to work in the field for her father she will have to do it for her husband.

Anna was found at Union Station by Policeman Trott. She had only a few cents in her purse, but her lack of funds did not worry her. She was escorted to Police Headquarters and when Chief Creecy heard her story he promised to find her a place to work. She is now in the matron's care.

LOWEST BID ON HIGH SCHOOL FOR NEGROES IS $297,827

$52,173 Less Than Estimate on Building, the Location of Which Was Fought.

Bids for the construction of the Sumner Negro High School on Cottage avenue, between Goode and Pendleton avenues, the location of which has been opposed vigorously by residents of the neighborhood, were opened by the Building Committee of the Board of Education Tuesday afternoon.

The Nicholas Pelligreen Construction and Investment Co. offered to build the structure for $297,827. The other bidders were: Charles O. A. Brunk, 298,000; Hoosac Building and Construction Co., $299,970; Hartmann Building and Contracting Co., $310,275; Wall Bros., $314,000; E. C. Gerhard Building Co., $314,697; Hill-O'Meara Construction Co., $316,500; Gillick Bros., $318,880; Kellerman Contracting Co., $324,700; S. L. Jones Building Co., $328,500; Hiram Lloyd Building and Construction Co., $327,557; Fred Boeke, $334,000; J. W. Wilson & Son, $389,000.

The estimated cost of the building was $350,000. The lowest bid is $52,173 below that estimate. The building will have 57 rooms, to accommodate 890 pupils. It will contain an auditorium, library, gymnasium, conservatory, wood-working shops, machine shop, printing office, sewing and millinery room, two fitting rooms, a laundry and a housekeeping suite.

How to Reduce Fat

The Simplest and Surest Way to Get Rid of Fat Said a Noted Physician, is Rengo.

How to Prove It to Yourself. Get a Free 50-cent Package.

The Above Illustration Plainly Shows What Rengo Has Done For Others. It Will Do The Same For You. Try It.

NEW TRADE-MARK.
Rengo Is Guaranteed. You Eat It Like Fruit or Candy.

The Above Pictures Prove There Is No Longer Any Excuse To Be Fat and Sloppy. Rengo Will Do It.

There has become known a remedy for fat, the use of which has already resulted in enormous benefit, and most probably in the saving of many lives.

This remedy is commonly called Rengo. The rate at which this remedy will reduce fat, and do it harmlessly and surely, is truly remarkable. A pound a day is ordinarily the loss recorded, being done by compelling perfect assimilation of the food, and sending the nutriment where it belongs.

The most remarkable feature of Rengo is that you can take all you want of it without running the slightest risk of harm. It can be chewed like candy and is pleasant to the taste.

Many physicians, who before were at a loss to know how to cure obesity, are now prescribing Rengo with remarkable success. It is a great nerve-strength producer, affecting digestion primarily, and inducing a general exhilaration of mind and body. Wrinkles which appear in nearly every case of reduction of fat where injurious drugs and starvation process is tried do not occur where Rengo is used.

There is nothing "just as good" as Rengo. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per full-sized box, or by mail, prepaid, by the Rengo Co., 3168 Rengo Bldg., Detroit, Mich. The company will gladly send you a 50c package free by mail, if you write them direct to Detroit and enclose 10c as an evidence of good faith and to help cover postage and packing; no free packages at drug stores.

Origin of Liver Trouble.

Trouble with the liver began when man began to eat more than was good for him. It became more aggravated when he drank too much, and showed in worse form when he both ate too much and drank too much.

This is said to have been about the time of the first banquet.

Of later time much smoking and following of sedentary occupations have added to the troubles of the liver, to say nothing of the effects of bad cooking by bad cooks, and the bolting of food by men-on-the-job of grabbing at the passing dollar.

Most ordinary human ills come from neglecting the liver, and serious sickness always follows continued neglect.

You can always tell when your li... needs attention, for it gives warn... when it is tired, overworked, run do... or is even only just lazy and in n... of toning up.

Sometimes you have sick headach... again a bilious spell. One time you b... come constipated, another you jus... have that tired-all-out feeling. The... you have stomach troubles and some... times bowel inflammation and fever. Jaundice, too, is one of the liver's ways of warning you.

When you get one of these warnings, you should do something to help the liver out—make it possible for it to do its part in digesting the things you have taken into your stomach and throwing off the waste. A good liver pill, compounded properly, is the best thing to bring this about.

The best sort of pills for the liver are Lane's Pills. They are made by Chas. E. Lane & Co., St. Louis, Mo. Mr. Lane has spent years in study and experiment to get the best liver pill that could be produced. It acts directly on the liver. It never gripes; it never leaves any bad after-effect and it always gives relief and removes the cause of the liver's trouble. Twenty-five doses cost 25 cents at druggists. A generous sample will be sent on request if your druggist hasn't got Lane's Pills. Sold in St. Louis by Johnson Bros., Broadway and Franklin; Wolff-Wilson, Sixth and Washington; Raboteau & Co., Broadway and Lucas; Enderle Drug Co. RIVERMAN SEES GREAT HARM IN CHOUTEAU BRIDGE

It Should Be Suspension Structure if Built There, Says Capt. Massengale.

FAVORS ANOTHER SITE

Piers Close to Eads Bridge Would Endanger Steamers, He Declares.

Capt. John E. Massengale, secretary of the St. Louis and Tennessee River Packet Co., will send a protest to Washington if the Chouteau avenue site is selected for the free bridge and if plans are submitted for a pier bridge.

"If a pier bridge were located at the foot of Chouteau avenue," he said Wednesday, "it would practically destroy the harbor and would be a very great menace to navigation. With the wind blowing 10 miles an hour or more, it would be difficult for a steamboat to back out from any of the wharfboats between Chouteau and Washington avenues, round to and get under steerage way without running a grave risk of being driven against one of the piers of the bridge.

"I watched this closely when President Roosevelt was here and have watched it at other times, and I am convinced that a pier bridge there would be very dangerous.

"I am not against the building of a bridge, but if it is built at Chouteau avenue it should be a suspension bridge, and if a pier bridge is built it should be three miles below the Eads Bridge or above it. The people of St. Louis are not consistent in clamoring for a 14-foot channel through the valley, and at the same time threaten the destruction of their harbor."

Capt. Messengale is sure that river men will join in a strong protest to the Government if plans are submitted for a pier bridge at Choutesu avenue.

TO TEST GRAIN-WEIGHING LAW

Merchants' Exchange Plans to Join in Injunction Suit.

The St. Louis Merchants' Exchange may join the Kansas City Board of Trade in a sweeping injunction suit to test the validity of the Missouri law which authorizes the State Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners to fix fees for weighing grain in public elevators. The fees are said to cost the merchants of St. Louis and Kansas City more than $25,000 a year.

Recently the Merchants' Exchange, aided by the Kansas City Board of Trade, succeeded in having declared unconstitutional a measure passed at the 1907 session of the Legislature, which provided fees for the State Board of Warehouse Commissioners for weighing grain at private elevators.

TRIED TO FORCE IT

Thought System Would Soon Tolerate Coffee.

A Boston lady tried to convince herself that she could get used to coffee, and finally found it was the stronger. She writes:

"When a child, being delicate and nervous, I was not allowed coffee. But since reaching womanhood I began its use, and as the habit grew on me, I frequently endeavored to break myself of it, because of its evident bad effects.

"With me the most noticeable effect of drinking coffee was palpitation of the heart. This was at times truly alarming, and my face would flush uncomfortably and maintain its vivid hue for some time.

"I argued that my system would soon accustom itself to coffee, and continued to use it, although I had a suspicion that it was affecting my eyesight, also. The kidneys early showed effects of coffee, as I found by leaving it off for a few days, when the trouble abated.

"Finally a friend called my attention to Postum. At first I did not like it, but when made right—boiled 15 minutes until dark and rich—I soon found Postum was just what I wanted. No flushing of the face, no palpitation, no discomfort or inconvenience after drinking it.

"Of course all this was not felt in a week, or two weeks, but within that time I can truthfully say a marked difference had taken place and a great deal of my nervousness had vanished.

"At present time my health is excellent, due to a continued use of Postum, with a general observance of proper hygiene. Of nothing am I more convinced than that if I had continued drinking coffee I should be today little less than a nervous wreck, and possibly blind."

"There's a Reason."

Scene of the Stage Robbery in Yellowstone Park Where Lone Bandit Took Money From 125 Passengers

MODE WINEMAN, artist and member of the Quadrangle Club of Chicago, was seeking for pictures of Yellowstone Park's beauties when he came upon the holdup in the wilderness. He hurried forward in time to take snapshots of the scene where a lone bandit had just taken the valuables and money of the 125 passengers in 11 coaches.

THE original photograph, together with those taken on the long walking tour through the park, just completed by Mr. Wineman, will be added to his collection, already conceded to be the most complete set of views of the great national reservation. This photograph was made just after the robber had departed.

TETANUS CURED AFTER PATIENT'S JAWS LOCKED

Injection of Sodium Chloride Directly Into Spinal Cord Is Effective.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A case of tetanus in advanced stages has just been cured at St. John's Hospital, Brooklyn. It is believed that the cure was effected through the use of sodium chloride as advised by the specialists of the Rockefeller Institute.

The patient was Allen Kollock, 15 years old, of Woodhaven, L. I. Three weeks ago, while at Patcogue, his foot was run over by a wagon and his toe was badly crushed. Dirt got into the wound. It was cleaned, but the foot swelled to almost twice its normal size. The swelling then was reduced, and no alarm was felt. Eight days after the accident the boy found that he could not open his jaws. His body became so rigid it was impossible to unbend it. Then the injured toe was amputated.

Following the operation a 25 per cent solution of sodium chloride was injected directly into the spinal cord. Immediately the boy's vitality began to ebb and he was in a state of collapse for 16 hours. The injections left him extremely weak.

For five days he received injections of 3000 units of anti-tetanus serum. Salt solutions were also used, and gradually his mouth began to open. He was fed through a bottle. On the sixth day, after the sodium chloride injection, he began to show marked signs of improvement. His recovery was rapid from that day.

VERMONT GOES REPUBLICAN BY 29,000; DECREASE

Independence League Polls 1252 Votes — Democrats Gain in the Cities.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., Sept. 2.—Complete returns from yesterday's State election in Vermont on the vote for Governor, shows the following:

George Prouty, Republican, 45,281; James E. Burke, Democrat, 15,905; Quimby S. Backus, Independence League, 1252; Eugene M. Campbell, Prohibitionist, 826; J. H. Dunbar, Socialist, 479.

The total vote of all parties was 66,747, and Prouty's plurality over Burke was 29,376.

This vote is below the average.

The next Legislature will stand as follows: Senate—Republicans 29, Democrat 1; House—Republicans 210, Democrats 30, Independence League 6.

Whether the 1000 or more votes cast for the Independence League candidates came from Democrats or the Republican ranks can only be conjectured, although last night it looked as if the Democrats had been the sufferers.

The Prohibition party ran a close race with the Independence League, while the Socialists were a poor fourth in the contest.

One of the greatest sensations of the primary election was the defeat of Congressman John J. Jenkins of the Eleventh District by Irvine L. Lenroot, former Speaker of the State Assembly and a strong La Follette follower.

Congressional nominations are as follows: First District—H. A. Cooper, Racine, Republican; H. A. Mosinpah, Clinton, Democrat; W. A. Jacobs, Racine, Social Democrat. Second District—John M. Nelson, Madison, Republican; Democratic not heard from. Third District—A. J. Kopp, Platteville, Republican; J. W. Murphy, Platteville, Democrat. Fourth District—W. J. Cary, Milwaukee, Republican; W. J. Kershaw, Democrat; E. T. Helms, Milwaukee, Social Democrat. Fifth District—W. H Stafford, Milwaukee, Republican; G. H. Daubnett, Waukesha, Democrat; A. J. Welch, Milwaukee, Social Democrat. Sixth District—George S. Pratt, Sheboygan, Republican; C. H. Welsse, Sheboygan Falls, Democrat. Seventh District—J. J. Esch, La Crosse, Republican; Bernard J. Keller, La Crosse, Democrat. Eighth District—J. H. Davidson, Oshkosh, Republican; L. J. Nash, Manitowie. Ninth District—Gustav Kusterman, Green Bay, Republican; Luther Lindaurer, Kaukauna, Democrat. Tenth District—E. A. Morse, Antigo, Republican; Wells M. Ruggles, Ashland, Democrat. Eleventh District—Irving L. Lenroot, Superior, Republican; J. S. Konkel, Superior, Democrat.

Stephenson Wins in Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 1.—Returns from the primary elections throughout Wisconsin, indicate that United States Senator Isaac Stephenson has received the indorsement of the Republicans of the State by several thousand plurality over his three opponents, Samuel A. Cook of Neenah, Francis E. McGovern of Milwaukee and W. H. Hatton of New London.

The Democrats have indorsed Neal Brown of Wausau over Melvin A. Hoyt of Milwaukee.

Gov. James O. Davidson received the Republican gubernatorial nomination without opposition and J. L. Aylward has defeated Adolph J. Schmitz to head the Democratic State ticket.

Result Uncertain in Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 2.—Returns from the State are coming in slowly and the indications are that A. C. Shallenberger of Alma has been nominated for Governor by the Democrats. In the city of Lincoln he led Dahlman of Omaha, although the saloon men were all working for the latter. George W. Berge seems to have carried Lincoln by a majority over both of his competitors, but the vote is too small to help him much in the State.

Gov. Sheldon and several other high State officials had no opposition on the Republican ticket and will, therefore, be renominated.

Bradley Wins in Michigan.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 2.—With returns in from a large majority of the election districts of the State, Dr. James B. Bradley of Eaton Rapids, State Auditor-General, has, it is conceded, defeated Gov. Fred M. Warner by about 2500 votes for the Republican nomination for Governor. Returns compiled today from all but 381 of the 2015 election districts of the State give the following totals for the three candidates: Bradley, 72,012; Warner, 70,363, and Earle, 20,010.

How Vermont Has Forecasted Presidential Year Results

	Republican plurality in Vermont.	Electoral votes.
1876	23,735	Hayes (R.) 185; Tilden (D.) 184.
1880	26,603	Garfield, (R.) 214; Hancock (D.) 155.
1884	22,704	Cleveland (D.) 219; Blaine (R.) 182.
1888	28,995	Harrison (R.) 233; Cleveland (D.) 168.
1892	19,702	Cleveland (D.) 277; Harrison (R.) 145.
1896	38,391	McKinley (R.) 271; Bryan (D.) 176.
1900	31,312	McKinley (R.) 292; Bryan (D.) 155.
1904	30,682	Roosevelt (R.) 336; Parker (D.) 140.
1908	29,376	Taft (R.) ??? Bryan (D.) ???

In every instance where the Republican plurality in Vermont has fallen below 25,000 in the State election, a Democratic national victory has followed. For this reason the Vermont election is sometimes considered a barometer to political conditions.

REPUBLICAN EXTRAVAGANCE.

Mr. Bryan struck home in his speech at the Minnesota State Fair when he attacked imperialism, militarism and extravagance, the three most conspicuous offences of the Roosevelt administrations.

The exhibit of Republican extravagance to which he called public attention is appalling.

Since 1888 the two-year appropriations have grown from one billion to two billions. The army is twice as large as it was in 1896, and its cost is three times as great. The expenses of the navy have been multiplied by three in ten years. During the Roosevelt administration 99,000 new offices have been created at an expense of $70,000,000 a year, as compared with 10,000 during the Cleveland and McKinley administrations. The growth of bureaucracy and of governmental expenditures have far outstripped the increase of population.

Mr. Bryan pertinently called attention to the fact that the burden of this extravagance falls heaviest upon the people of small means, the farmers, the salaried men and the wage earners who pay for it through the increased cost of the tariff-taxed necessaries of life. It amounts, as he pointed out, to a graduated income tax, the largest per cent being collected from small incomes—the smaller the income the larger the percentage, and the least per cent from the large incomes—the larger the income the less the per cent.

These are real issues involving questions of vital importance to the people.

Mr. Taft's view that we should welcome China as a wholly independent power and not be jealous of the Son of Heaven was probably adopted without consulting Mr. Hobson.

BLOWN IN THE BOTTLE.

It was unnecessary for Mr. Taft to brand as a lie the story that he said $1 a day was enough for any workingman. That is a kind of campaign "dope" in which the brand of lie is blown in the bottle.

We cannot believe that the wayfaring man, though a fool, could err in recognizing the nature of campaign lies of that kind. It must have been something of a humiliation to Mr. Taft to deny the story. He doubtless felt that he was reflecting on the intelligence of the public when he felt called upon to deny it. He must have been conscious of a stoop from manly dignity in doing it.

As a judge on the bench, Mr. Taft made certain decisions, delivered legal opinions in questions of law affecting injunctions, which are offensive to members of labor unions. But no intelligent man believes that as a man Mr. Taft has any hostility to laboring men or that a man of his high intelligence, admirable character and liberal views could hold or express petty, mean, unjust or brutal opinions of labor or of the men who live by the work of their hands. The circulation of silly and malicious stories of this kind in political campaigns is a disgusting feature of politics. It is more injurious to those who give currency to them than to those whom they are intended to injure.

Mr. Breckinridge Jones says: "Let the banks keep out of the Government business and let the Government keep out of the banking business." That's fair, but will the banks agree to it?

SUCCESS FOR THE "SOCIAL SESSION."

The social session as a novelty of the church in St. Louis has passed from the ideal into the real and practical. As the idea has been fully defined, and also illustrated in the Post-Dispatch, it is bound to win.

The definitions are strong points in its favor. The idea of rescuing young people from city loneliness and bringing them together under the best and most pleasing influences, must draw the unattached into closer attachment to what is best through what is most pleasing. To combat all sorts of other things which appeal to city loneliness, unattached, what is best and most pleasing in the social session of the church needed only to be defined first and then illustrated.

As the Post-Dispatch has illustrated it after defining it, it shows the hostesses of the social session may be expected to look in their official capacity as deaconesses and assistant deaconesses. One look at them, as thus illustrated, ought to be enough to show that the ideal is also the real.

As hostesses, St. Louis deaconesses and assistant deaconesses have only to go on looking as they look in the Post-Dispatch illustration of how what is best and most pleasing is to exert its influence on city loneliness. That will decide everything, except perhaps the question of finding a place large enough to hold the social session which thus illustrates a homely pastor's idea of making the church attractive.

An economical woman who writes to the Post-Dispatch asks when she will be free from a debt of $1600 which she is about to incur and states that her living expenses absorb all but $5 per month of her income. As interest at 4 per cent will amount to $60 a year she cannot hope for relinquishment from debt on even that distant day when St. Louis' free bridge shall be completed.

"SHALL THE PEOPLE RULE?"

When officeholders of any party are arbitrary and irresponsible the people do not rule. Arbitrary government is corrupt government. Irresponsible government is dishonest government.

Four years ago Missouri voted against corrupt and dishonest government. It voted that all Missouri officeholders must answer in full for the use made of public power. It demanded public responsibility instead of irresponsibility. Instead of corrupt party management it called for honest partisanship. Instead of the sale of legislation, it demanded representative government. Against bossism, it set the honest purpose of the people, determined to compel every officeholder in every party to meet his responsibility and give a full account of his use of power.

After four years, with the abuse of Federal offices more flagrant, with arbitrary power more menacing, with national extravagance in unnecessary levies on the earnings of the country's workers unprecedented, Missouri has forced on it more urgently than ever the need for giving its own answer to the question of the right of its people to self-government.

If they are not to turn back to conditions whose exposure showed corruption it is literally sickening to remember, they must compel every candidate who comes before them asking office, to show cause why his name should remain on the ticket voted by honest men. If he fails to show cause, no matter what his name or his party name, the ticket should be voted straight for honesty against him. If this is done, the people will rule in Missouri and Missouri will force the rule of the people as a substitute for that of machines, of bosses, or rings, of monopolies, of corruption and plutocracy, in every State in the Union.

Oklahoma is as safely Democratic as Pennsylvania is Republican. There is no pot of gold at the end of that rainbow for Republican visionaries.

THE ONE THING NEEDFUL.

Four of the seven members of the Public Improvements Committee of the House of Delegates, including the chairman, say they favor the natural gas franchise bill. Three members say they have not voted for the bill because it has not been called up for consideration. Chairman Brennan says he has not called it up because of "no quorum."

With the publication of this information there should be no further delay in considering and reporting the bill. The sincerity of the majority of the committee is on trial.

Delegates Simmons wants better guarantees that the men back of the bill are able to carry out the plan it embodies. Certainly there should be ample guarantees and ample safeguards for the city, but the question of guarantees and safeguards are not settled by delay. The bill should be perfected at every point before it is passed, but the one thing needful to accomplish anything toward obtaining cheap gas for St. Louis is action.

A doughnut in Ohio exploded disastrously the other day. Is this prophetic as to the Taft boom?

WINNING THE PRIZE BEAUTY.

The Post-Dispatch prize-beauty—that is to say, the winner of the Post-Dispatch beauty contest—has been wooed and won, and we hasten to offer our cordial felicitations to herself and congratulations to her winner.

Beauty is sometimes said to be only skin deep. In this view we do not share. The more especially in the case of this young lady do we discern beauty of character and of spirit expressed in feature, and for this reason our congratulations are the more genuine to her accepted suitor.

The gentleman's photograph is not in evidence; nor is his beauty an issue. We might deduce that he is none too good-looking, and we recall that in the common run of life the men who marry beauties are usually homely as sin. But, on behalf of the Post-Dispatch beauty, for whose happiness we claim the right to feel solicitude, we venture the hope that he is the possessor of the homely virtues in which true manly beauty alone consists. None but the brave deserve the fair—and, we add, none but the honest, the genuine, the strong and the kind.

Beauty that is as good as it is beautiful, mated with the handsomeness which is "as handsome does," go to make up the ideal life—and that is what we wish for our young friends.

The Russian revolutionists are protesting that murder is not a political crime. That may be, but here in St. Louis we have something akin to it in our grave-robbing election frauds.

CANNY VETERANS.

Seeing a great influx of G. A. R. veterans, the hotel managers of Toledo thought to try the familiar convention-town trick of raising rates to the sky. But the veterans threatened a great outflux, and the hotel managers thought better of it.

The Grand Army veteran is not a veteran in name only. The lessons of experience have not been lost upon him. For all-around capacity to look after himself, trust the veteran. He knows how to deal with the commissary. Nobody is cannier than he.

Moreover, it is something of a tribute to the condition, the self-preservation and prosperity of the G. A. R. as a class that the hotel managers ever thought of raising rates on them. There are several other classes of veterans who would never excite the wildest avarice of hotel managers.

The Bryan campaign fund is looking up, with the women interesting themselves therein. It takes the women to really raise the dough.

BALL'S INFLUENCE.

If Dave Ball is not wholly carried away by resentment he will probably not take the suggestion that he become an independent candidate for Governor seriously.

Under the primary law an independent candidacy is not practicable. This is unfortunate as leaving no escape for the voter from the clutches of the machine. But the fact is there and cannot be blinked. Of course, any voter can cast a ballot for an independent by scratching the regular candidate, but it would be only a sort of political bushwhacking and would have no influence on the result.

Mr. Ball will find a fruitful field for the employment of his honesty and courage within the party where he can labor to purge it of abhorrent influences. There is enough work of that kind cut out for him and others like him for some time to come.

Dave Ball is not a "dead one" by any means; he has an immense popularity, which will serve him as a lever to make his weight felt in the party counsels. Neither sulking nor bushwhacking is in his line and he is not likely to do either while there is an opportunity to work for the betterment of a sick party crying out for redemption.

The pastor of Centenary Church believes in utilizing his plant to its fullest capacity. He has invited young ladies who live in boarding houses where there are no accommodations for callers to meet men in the parlors of his church. There the lonelies may find companionship and it may be mates.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To Lonesome Widow.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I think Lonesome Widow is badly mistaken, as I myself, and about five or six more young men ranging between 30 and 35 years would be glad to marry a widow of her age. We really would not marry a young girl for the simple reason most of them do not understand the beauty of the charming word, home. We have the same opinions against women as Lonesome Widow has against men and were very much surprised about her complaint to the editor.

A LONESOME BACH.

The Rombauer Sensation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Permit me to thank your considerate action in instructing your correspondent here to wire you my own statement touching my recent involuntary trip through the mountains. A sensational dispatch, purporting to come from this place, and dated on the 26th, appeared in one of the St. Louis dailies and caused great anxiety to my family as to my condition and great indignation among the boarders at the Horseshoe Inn, who all knew that it was absolutely untrue in almost every detail. You can assure all my friends that I arrived at Drake's after my long tramp in tiptop condition and that the telegram which I sent to my wife that I never felt better in my life was absolutely true. I suffered no inconvenience or bad effects after taking some rest and food and could without difficulty walk the same distance again and at once. Diligent inquiry discloses that no such special dispatch was sent from this place to the St. Louis morning daily in question by anyone and that the dispatch was manufactured elsewhere out of whole cloth. By giving this communication a prominent place in your valuable columns you will greatly oblige

Good Dogs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I read the article, "Muzzle the Dogs." I have had many dogs and never had a muzzle. In regard to children being in danger, I am surprised more parents take so little time to teach children humanity, as I have seen dogs simply tormented to satisfy some childish whim, when the poor animal could not protect himself. A good dog is a faithful companion, also a true friend to those who treat them kindly. I have never known it to fail.

Vitality of the Negro.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The article appearing in a recent edition of the Post-Dispatch by Sutton E. Griggs, relative to the gradual absorption of the negro by the white race and the consequent elimination of the negro, would be a happy solution of the race question from the standpoint of the latter, if such a thing were possible, but it is not. Nature itself intervenes with an insurmountable obstacle—sterility at the third cross. For example: If we cross a white with a negro, the product or offspring is a mulatto; cross the white with a mulatto and the product is a quadroon; cross a white with a quadroon and the product is an octoroon, and here the process stops, for the octoroon, whether male or female, will not breed. I have been an observer of negroes for a great many years and have never known of a single instance where the negro has been entirely eliminated. On the contrary, I have known of many cases where the white has been absorbed by the negro race. If we cross a white with a black we have a mulatto, cross a black with a mulatto and you have a ginger color, cross a black with a ginger color and you have a coal-black negro without any trace whatever of the white, and yet his grandfather was a white man. The same is true of all the other races. I have heard of cases in which the white has absorbed the Indian, but I doubt it.

Sweet Figures.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Pleased to see that Miss Stubbs has furnished a table showing that trades union wages have increased since 1893. But what about the thousands of workers who are not in unions and whose business has no union? In 1893 many men saved money who now have to exert themselves to make ends meet. O, Stubbs! Stubbs! You are a joy and a comfort. Give us more of your sweet statistics.

Civil Service Reform.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Recently articles have appeared in the dailies of our leading cities stating that certain officers in the Government service have been reprimanded for their pernicious activity in politics, while a few subordinates have been removed. This is only just and fair, and so long as there is a law it ought to be obeyed by all living under it, whether it be a pussyfooted politician or an individual who has pluck and sense enough to pass the rigid examinations required by the Civil Service Commission. The Democratic party reproves the Republican party for their display of bombastic oratory concerning the civil service law and their boastful promises, all of which are forgotten soon after election. The Republicans in return express their opinion of the Democrats in the same bold manner, and each party is full of dishonest politicians lying in wait for a princely salary or a chance to boodle. The old politician's cry is, "To the victor belongs the spoils," but when the business men and decent citizens succeeded in establishing a civil service system under our Government and many worthy applicants were examined, passed, and appointed they did not then cry out, "To the victor belongs the spoils," but instead, "To the party in power belongs the jobs—to hades with C. S." It is up to the thoughtful business man, the industrious young man and the decent citizen to see that no party in power repeals the civil service act or the last part of it.

CIVIL SERVICE ADVOCATE.

BLIND MEN SELDOM SMOKE.

From the New York Press.

Blind men seldom smoke. Those who were inveterate smokers in their sighted days find that after losing their sight a pipe or a cigar has no attraction for them. The man who has no eyes to watch the smoke curl and drift about his head apparently has no use for a cigar.

Smoking to the absolutely blind is something different from smoking in the dark. Besides, few persons smoke in total darkness. Usually there is starlight or firelight enough to enable a man to keep tracks of the smoke. When deprived of that fascinating pastime the cigar loses its charm, and the man who is blind resigns himself to a smokeless old age.

A STUDY IN PHRENOLOGY.

JUST A MINUTE FOR VERSE AND HUMOR.

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Ripley D. Saunders.

WU TING FANG—A LAMENT.

OH, Wu!
But we'll be missing you
If your Government recalls you as it's said they're going to do!
Wu-Ting!
Black dirges now we'll sing,
If home to China you must hike, you
dear, bland thing!
Wu-Ting-Fang!
But it's such a bitter pang
That we feel we'll have to cuss the luck
a little—Ding-dang!
For Liang Tun Yen
May be one of the best of men,
But you're the sort we like, Wu, so why be changing, then?

Dear Wu!
You've tickled us not a few
With your sly Chinese humor that's so oily through and through!
Meant so little, said so much,
In your interviews and such,
That we could not help admiring your diplomatic touch!
And all the blessed while
So childlike was your smile,
That a very honest liking from our hearts it did beguile!
O, Wu-Ting!
It's a shame to pull the string
That yanks you back to China with such a sudden fling!
O, Wu-Ting-Fang!
Write home to your old Government and tell it to go hang!

RICH PICKINGS.

Young St. Louisan: The newspapers say that Adolphus Busch may have to pay a doctor's bill of $55,000.

Old St. Louisan: Gee whiz—those doctors must think money grows on Busches!

QUICK ACTION.

Strap Hanger No. 1: What do you think of those pay-as-you-enter cars the United Railways intends to put on in St. Louis soon?

Second Strap Hanger: Ah, Lord—that's a case of "hands up!" before you're even in reach of a strap!

UNCLE SHADRACH'S CREED.

Yo' religion ain't a-worryin' me none,
All my life dis rule I'se had—Doan' trubble yo' head 'bout'n whut a man believes—
Is dat man bad?

An' I'se plumb willin' to 'low yo' creed
Am soun' as mine, as sho' I should,
Not knowin' more'n you—all I ax am

Is you good?

HELD BY THE ENEMY.

PANIC prevailed in the City Hall—an easy-money panic so noisy with coin-chink as almost to become tin-panic.

Collector of the Revenue Hagerman stood appalled.

"Help! Help!" he cried—but he was fast being overwhelmed by the Mazuma invasion. It was terrible.

City Treasurer Franciscus sprang to his side.

"I'll stand by you to the last, Jim!" he shouted. "But I'm only allowed to deposit $11,000,000 in eleven city banks, and already we've nearly reached that limit! It's a dreadful situation!"

City Comptroller Player rushed on the scene.

"Courage!" he cried. "It's always darkest just before dawn! Maybe the taxpayers will get tired paying taxes today and thus save us. It's our only hope!"

But, in full hearing of poor Hagerman's piteous cries for help, City Auditor Dierkes was "holding up" the vouchers for the August salaries of Free Bridge employes, refusing to pay out a cent until Mayor Wells should authorize such action—and the Mayor was as dumb as a clam!

St. Louis himself happened along just then.

"Why in the world don't you get rid of some of that embarrassing money," he asked, "by paying off these Free Bridge workers, hiring a lot more in addition, and organizing a Free Bridge hustle to beat the band?"

And the Mayor made instant reply.

"What business is it of yours?" he asked. "Go away—you disturb my equanimity!"

THE DICKENS GIRL.

THEY say the "Dickens Girl" so sweet
Is coming back in style—
And O, she'll have the "Gibson Girl"
For the Gibson girl's a stiff-necked thing,
And cold as Polar ice,
While the Dickens girl's a "cuddling" girl—
My, my! Won't that be nice?

She wears coal-scuttle bonnets tied
Beneath her dimpled chin,
And Dolly Varden panered skirts
She garbs her beauty in,
Low neckerchiefs reveal her throat,
Cross-gartered pumps, her feet,
Her fingers from silk mittens steal
For kissing—ain't that sweet?

And she just gushes sentiment,
And revels in the moon,
And yearns for petting all the time,
At morning, night or noon!
Yes, honest, she's a "girly" girl,
Of "mannishness" no sign,
And she can "snuggle" to beat the band—
My, my! Won't that be fine?

DRAWING THE LINE.

First Taxpayer: I see City Forester Meyer is going to ask an appropriation for tree-trimming and pruning.

Second Taxpayer: It'll be all right so long as he doesn't ask one for grafting.

Why talk of race suicide when the town's full of Missouri pawpaws?

DOWN WITH THE TYRANT!

Hand-out Henry: Uncle Sam's puttin' a little green stamp on old "red-eye" now to show it's real booze.

Peripatetic Pat: Hooroo! The green above the red fur me ivʼry toime!

Postmaster Wyman returns from his vacation just in time to hear talk of his being asked to vacate.

THE WISE ONE.

"Oh, foolish man!" the people cry
To him who is content
With just a little more to spend
Than what needs to be spent,
But seeing the beauty of this life
The way its Giver meant.

Alas, the foolish people all
That win the money prize!
When they at last their treasure count
With disappointed eyes,
Seeing how richer he than they—
"Ah, thou," they cry, "art wise!"

WORRIED.—The woman who marries before she is divorced commits bigamy. Her marriage is not a common-law marriage. Illinois does not recognize any common-law marriage.

A SUBSCRIBER.—Woman of good character whose husband, drawing a soldier's pension, is not supporting her, is entitled to half the pension. See pension officials, 208 Old Postoffice, Third and Olive streets.

ARNETT.—Fix your mind positively on something else than yourself and you will have no "stage fright" in talking to men. Most of them are exceedingly commonplace, and it is remarkable that you should stand in awe of any.

JOHN.—Head lice: Buy 10 or 15 cents worth of flaxberries (whole) at druggist's. Break into small bits with hammer, add pint or more pure alcohol. Let stand 24 hours. Thoroughly wet scalp and head before retiring, tying the head up in a towel. Repeat two or three times. Flaxberries are poisonous. Pick out all nits.

MURPHY.—Physicians say a red nose is the first indication of indigestion. Avoid rich pastry, greasy food, and all stimulating and highly-spiced dishes. Apply this ointment to the nose every night: One dram of powdered sulphur, two and one-half drams of powdered starch, one and one-half ounces of oxide of zinc ointment with three drops of oil of rose.

DEAD EASY.—If a man jumps straight into the air from a moving train he will drop on the exact spot from which he jumped, the motion imparted to his body by the train carrying him forward at the same speed as the train. This is theoretical and would be practical inside a car. Outside the car the resistance of the air would probably check a man's speed and the train would pass from under him and he would hit the ground several feet further along the track than the spot where he jumped. If he jumped in the opposite direction from the way the train was going and at the same speed of the train he would drop directly on the ground. Try the experiments and report results.

N. G.—Glass can be cut without a diamond. Dip a piece of common string in alcohol and squeeze it reasonably dry. Then tie the string tightly around the glass on the line of cutting. Touch a match to the string and let it burn off. The heat of the burning string will weaken the glass in this particular place. While it is hot plunge the glass under water, letting the arm go well to the elbow so that there will be no vibration when the glass is struck. With the free hand strike the glass outside the line of cutting, giving a quick, sharp stroke with any long, flat instrument, such as a stick of wood or a long-bladed knife, and the cut will be as clean and straight as if made by a regular glass cutter. Large bottles can thus be readily utilized for jelly glasses.

PRICE.—All plants require a certain amount of sunshine in order to turn into starch the various nutriments they absorb in the soil and atmosphere. The varieties of the cactus, especially those natives of the deserts, probably require more sunshine than any other plants of the vegetable kingdom. The ivy will do well in a partially shaded place; however, some sunshine is necessary, for the reason as above stated. Try to give all plants as near as possible their natural environments. It is not possible to state the definite time or certain quantity of water that any plant requires. This depends entirely upon the atmospheric conditions and the habit of the individual plants to be treated. As a general rule for water-pot grown plants whenever the soil becomes dry near the surface, give them a sufficient amount to allow the soil to become thoroughly saturated. If plants are exposed to a drafty position water will probably be necessary at this time of the year twice a day.

THE VISION OF SALOME

A Thrilling Heart Romance Written From the Herod Dance, as Interpreted in New York by Gertrude Hoffman, for the Post-Dispatch

BY ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE.

(Copyrighted, 1908, by the Press Publishing Co. All rights reserved. Used by special arrangement with Morris Gest, Manager.)

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Salome (stepdaughter of Herod, Tetrarch of Jerusalem,) becomes madly infatuated with the Prophet, John the Baptist, who is prisoner in a dry well in the courtyard of Herod's palace. The Prophet so sternly repulses her as to arouse within the girl's heart a furious desire for revenge. On the evening of Herod's birthday, the half-drunken Tetrarch urges Salome to dance for him and his guests. She obeys.

CHAPTER VI.

The Dance.

THE dance was on. For a moment Salome stood motionless, her arms outstretched. Then the throb and rythm of the music seemed to set the blood in her veins to throbbing in attune to the measures of the lutes, and to master her entire slender body.

The motion began in the white, outstretched arms. They vibrated, trembled, swayed, in time to the music. The motion passed on to her body and to her tiny bare feet.

Slowly at first, then faster, moved Salome; incredibly graceful, sinuous as a serpent, alternately as swift as the lightnings themselves, and then fraught with the dreamy languor of the East.

The rhythm and beat of the music had hypnotized her and the spell passed from her to the audience, enrapturing, encompassing them.

Now, with a flash of white limbs and swirling drapery, she was flying through air with motions the eye could scarce follow. As a bodyless sprite she seemed darting above earth at will.

Again, scarce moving, yet with every line of her slim body expressive, she sank to earth, as the breezes die at sunset.

Swift, slow, languorous or inspiring, at will she sped through the myriad mazes of the weird dance. She was no longer mortal, but the spirit of glorious motion. Her every gesture, step and expression was part of the wonderful entirety of grace.

Calus, the Roman, leaning against a pillar, was carried away like the rest by the wonder of it all. Yet he noted two things unobserved by any of the others. First, that whatever her posture or evolution Salome never once took her burning eyes from Herod. Second, that she made that low-curbed well mouth the center and objective point of every phase in the dance.

Faster and faster went the music. Faster and faster flew the girl. Her feet were but a white blur against the shining marble. Her body was whirling madly, deliriously.

Faster, faster. The tension was becoming unbearable. Music and dancer alike seemed possessed of the insane speed of the desert simoon. Then——

A crash of chords, a gyrating shape that suddenly took the form of a motionless, exhausted woman—and the dance was at an end!

For a second there was a dead silence throughout the courtyard. Then a confused sound of the intaking of a hundred breaths. Then a rapturous, tumultuous roar of applause—applause that appeared to have no end and that billowed like surging breakers over and about the panting dancer.

"Evoe!! Evoe!" yelled the Roman guests, wholly shaken from their habitual lofty calm. And the cry was taken up on all sides.

Again Calus noted that Salome, giving no heed to the shouts of her audience held Herod's eyes captive and was bending toward the Tetrarch with a concentration of purpose that blanched her face.

Herod, rolling off of his cushions, drained another deep wine cup and reeled toward her.

"A thousand thanks and ten thousand praises!" he hiccoughed. "Never since Venus danced before Anchises hath the moon looked down upon such grace. My birthday is the crowning day of my life. And it is you who have made it so, oh, Salome! What reward shall be yours? Speak girl! You have but to ask."

Salome eyed the drunken ruler with open scorn.

"Ask?" she repeatedly ironically. "I am to ask, perchance, for some pretty jewel, and then—be humiliated before all your court by having you refuse me the gift? No!"

"You wrong me!" protested Herod "By all the gods of Olympus, you wrong me. Ask and your boon is granted. Ask and I shall grant your wish, if it be the half of my kingdom."

Salome's sneering laugh cut short his protests.

"Words are easily spoken!" she scoffed. "And as easily recalled. And drunken promise—"

"Stop," ordered the Tetrarch, and there was a certain dignity in his fat body as he drew himself up and glowered into the fearless eyes that confronted his.

"Stop!" he repeated. "Men have spoken slanderous things of me, from time to time, but my bitterest foe has never cast doubt on my pledged word. Is it not so?"

"It is so," she admitted grudgingly. "But"——

"And I pledge you that word—I vow to you by all the gods and by the tomb of my father—I vow to you that you shall receive from me whatsoever favor you may ask. The word—the oath—of Herod Antipas. I call all to witness it. Are you content?"

"I am content!" she replied, and her voice rang out like a trumpet call that sounds tidings of victory.

A hundred pairs of wondering eyes turned upon her, marveling much at that strange note and more at the wild light that suddenly illuminated her young face. Even Herod himself was momentarily taken aback as her clarion tones cut through the drink mists that enveloped his brain.

But the Tetrarch was too far gone in drink to be warned by any mere fleeting impression. Back to the couch he waddled and sank down among the cushions with a grunt of content, signalling his cup bearer for more wine.

"And now," he queried, "what is this gift to be? What am I to give you? Slaves, gold, jewels, land? What?"

The cup bearer advanced holding the goblet of wine high upon a huge golden "charger" (or salver).

Herod reached forth a shaky hand to take the cup. But Salome was quicker.

With a sudden blow she struck the wine cup to the ground and wrenched the golden charger from the attendant's hands.

"This!" she cried, brandishing the plate before Herod. "This is part of my gift. I demand the head of John the Baptist on this charger!"

Herodias, who had sat speechless and wondering, now sprang to her feet and threw her arms about Salome with a shriek of fierce joy.

"Are you clean mad, girl?" he croaked, "or"——

"I am sane," she retorted. "I demand"——

"Your devil of a mother has put you up to this!" he howled. "It is she who"——

"It is I and I alone," declared Salome.

"But this is madness," gurgled Herod, weakly. "You don't know—you can't understand. What can you know of this Prophet? He is good—he is a servant of the unknown God of Israel. He is great and wise above all men. A saint, not a mortal. I revere him. True, I imprisoned him, but that was to check the scolding tongue of Herodias. I would sooner cut off my right hand than that he should die! He has"——

"I hold you to your word," persisted Salome, "to your oath, sworn by the tomb of your father. I will have the head of John the Baptist on a charger! Else you are foresworn and shall be known to all men for a liar!"

"Don't! Don't!" groaned Herod. "Listen! Listen, now! This is but a crazy fancy of yours. Ask anything else. I have wealth in gold and jewels above any other man on earth, save only Caesar. It shall be yours—not half, but all, ALL! You shall reign as Queen of Judea. My summer palace of ivory and gold on the Mount of Olives is the envy of the world. I give it you! The ships at Jaffa bring me treasures from all over the earth! I give you all of it. Ask! Only ask the dearest gift in all my power, and it is yours. But"——

"I ask—I DEMAND," answered Salome, "the head of the Prophet."

AN INSIDE VIEW OF LIFE AMONG THE CHILDREN OF THE 400.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTER.

Phillip Selwyn, an officer in the army in the Philippines, is deserted in Manila by his wife, Alixe, for Jack Ruthven. He permits her to secure a divorce and marry Ruthven and resigns from the army. He returns to New York and the home of his sister (Nina), Mrs. Austin Gerard. There he meets Eileen Erroll, ward of the Gerards. Eileen's brother Gerald is in real estate with Julius Neergard, a shady promotor, and is somewhat dissipated. Austin Gerard is trustee for some of Gerald's property and is much disturbed by the young man's wild ways. Eileen has just "come out," and Selwyn finds her very attractive.

CHAPTER II.

A Dream Ends.

TO PICK up once more and tighten and knot together the loosened threads which represented the unfinished record that his race had woven into the social fabric of the metropolis was merely an automatic matter for Selwyn.

His own people had always been among the makers of that fabric. Into parts of its vast and intricate pattern they had woven an inconspicuously honorable record—chronicles of births and deaths and marriages, a plain memorandum of plain living, and upright dealing with their fellow men.

Some public service of modest nature they had performed, not seeking it, not shirking ;accomplishing it cleanly when it was intrusted to them.

His forefathers had been, as a rule, professional men—physicians and lawyers; his grandfather died under the walls of Chapultepec Castle while twisting a tourniquet for a cursing dragoon; an uncle remained indefinitely at Malvern Hill; an only brother at Montauk Point having sickened in the trenches before Santiago.

His father's services as division medical officer in Sheridan's cavalry had been, perhaps, no more devoted, no more loyal than the services of thousands of officers and troopers; and his reward was a pension offer, declined. He practiced until his wife died, then retired to his country home, from which house his daughter Nina was married to Austin Gerard.

The first gun off the Florida Keys sent Selwyn's only brother from his law office in hot haste to San Antonio—the first etape on his first and last campaign with Wood's cavalry.

That same gun interrupted Selwyn's connection with Neergard & Co., operators in Long Island real estate; and, a year later, the captaincy offered him in a Western volunteer regiment operating on the Island of Leyte, completed the rupture.

* * * * * * * * * *

And now he was back again, a chance career ended, with option of picking up the severed threads—his inheritance at the loom—and of retying them, warp and weft, and continuing the pattern according to the designs of the tufted, tinted pile-yarn, knotted in by his ancestors before him.

Selwyn reflected: "I believe I'd go and see Neergard if I were perfectly sure of my personal sentiments toward him * * * He's been civil enough to me, of course, but I have always had a curious feeling about Neergard—that he's for ever on the edge of doing something—doubtful"——

"His business reputation is all right. He shaves the dead line like a safety razor, but he's never yet cut through it. On principle, however, look out for an apple-faced Dutchman with a thin nose and no lips. Neither Jew, Yankee nor American stands any chance in a deal with that type of financier. Personally my feeling is this: if I've got to play games with Julius Neergard, I'd prefer to be his partner. And so I told Gerald. By the way"——

Austin checked himself, looked down at his cigar, turned it over and over several times, then continued quietly:

"By the way, I suppose Gerald is like other young men of his age and times—immersed in his own affairs—thoughtless perhaps, perhaps a trifle selfish in the cross-country gallop after pleasure * * * I was rather severe with him about his neglect of his sister. He ought to have come here to pay his respects to you, too"——

"Oh, don't put such notions into his head"——

"Yes, I will!" insisted Austin; "however indifferent and thoughtless and selfish he is to other people, he's got to be considerate toward his own family. And I told him so. Have you seen him lately?"

"N-o," admitted Selwyn.

"Not since that first time when he came to do the civil by you?"

"No, but don't "——

"Yes, I will," repeated his brother-in-law; "and I'm going to have a thorough explanation with him and learn what he's up to. He's got to be decent to his sister; he ought to report to me occasionally; that's all there is to it. He has entirely too much liberty with his bachelor quarters and his junior whipper-snapper club, and his house parties and his cruises on Neergard's boat!"

The next morning, riding in the park with Eileen, he found a chance to speak cordially of her brother.

"I've meant to look up Gerald," he said, as though the neglect were his own fault, "but every time something happens to switch me onto another track."

"I'm afraid that I do a great deal of the switching," she said; "don't I? But you've been so nice to me and to the children that"——

Miss Erroll's horse was behaving badly and for a few moments she became too thoroughly occupied with her mount to finish her sentence.

The belted groom galloped up, prepared for emergencies, and he and Selwyn sat in their saddles watching a pretty battle for mastery between a beautiful horse determined to be bad and a very determined young girl who had decided he was going to be good.

Once or twice the excitement of solicitude sent the color flying into Selwyn's temples; the bridle path was narrow and stiff with freezing sand, and the trees were too near for such lively maneuvers; but Miss Erroll had made up her mind—and Selwyn already had a humorous idea that this was no light matter. The horse found it serious enough, too, and suddenly concluded to be good. And the pretty scene ended so abruptly that Selwyn laughed aloud as he rejoined her:

"There was a man—'Boots' Lansing—in Bannard's command. One night on Samar the bolomen rushed us, and Lansing got into the six-foot major's boot's by mistake—seven leaguers, you know—and his horse bucked him clean out of them."

Later she remarked: "It's just as Nina says, after all, isn't it?"

"I suppose so," he replied, suspiciously; "what?"

"That Gerald isn't really very wicked, but he likes to have us think so. It's a sign of extreme self-consciousness, isn't it?" she added innocently, "when a man is afraid that a woman thinks he is very, very good?"

"That," he said, "is the limit. I'm going to ride by myself."

"I wish you knew Gerald well," she said impulsively, "he is such a dear fellow; and I think you'd be good for him—and besides," she hastened to add, with instinctive loyalty, lest he misconstrue, "Gerald would be good for you. We were a great deal together—at one time."

He nodded, smilingly attentive.

"Of course when he went away to school it was different," she added. "And then he went to Yale; that was four more years you see."

"I was a Yale man," remarked Selwyn; "did he—" but he broke off abruptly, for he knew quite well that young Erroll could have made no senior society without his hearing of it. And he had not heard of it—not in the canebrakes of Leyte where, on his sweat-soaked shirt, a small pin of heavy gold had clung through many a hike and many a scout and by many a campfire where the talk was of home and of the chances of crews and of quarterbacks.

He thought to himself, quite impersonally: "She's a real beauty, that youngster. No wonder they ask her to dance and nobody is horrid. Men are likely enough to go quite mad about her as Nina predicts; probably some of 'em have already — that chuckle-headed youth who was there Tuesday, gulping up the tea—" And, "What was his name?" he asked aloud.

"Whose name?" she inquired, roused by his voice from smiling retrospection.

"That chuckle-head—the young man who continued to haunt you so persistently when you poured tea for Nina on Tuesday. Of course they all haunted you," he explained politely, as she shook her head in sign of non-comprehension; "but there was one who—ah—gulped at his cup."

"Please—you are rather dreadful, aren't you?"

"Yes. So was he; I mean the infatuated chinless gentleman whose facial ensemble remotely resembled the features of a pleased and placid lizard of the Reptilian period."

"Oh, George Fane! That is particularly disagreeable of you. Captain Selwyn, because his wife has been very nice to me—Rosamund Fane—and she spoke most cordially of you——"

"Which one was she?"

"The Dresden china one. She looks—she simply cannot look as though she wore married. It's most amusing—for people always take her for somebody's youngest sister who will be out next winter. * * * Don't you remember seeing her?

"Very fetching," he said, leaning down to examine his stirrup leathers which he had already lengthened twice.

As he straightened up, Miss Erroll said: "Here comes Mr. Fane now—with a strikingly pretty girl. How beautifully they are mounted"—smilingly returning Lane's salute—"and she—oh! so you do know her, Capt. Selwyn? Who is she?"

Crop raised mechanically in dazed salute, Selwyn's light touch on the bridle had tightened to a nervous clutch which brought his horse up sharply.

"What is it?" she asked, drawing bridle in her turn and looking back into his white, stupefied face.

"Pain," he said, unconscious that he spoke. At the same instant the stunned eyes found their focus—and found her beside his stirrup, leaning wide from her seat in sweet concern, one gloved hand resting on the pommel of his saddle.

"Are you ill?" she asked; "shall we dismount? If you feel dizzy, please lean against me."

"I am all right," he said coolly; and as she recovered her seat he set his horse in motion. His face had become very red now; he looked at her, then beyond her, with all the deliberate concentration of aloof indifference.

Neither self-command nor self-control was lacking now in Selwyn; he simply was too self-absorbed to care what she thought—whether she thought at all. And into his consciousness, throbbing heavily under the rushing reaction from shock, crowded the crude fact that Alixe was no longer an apparition evoked in sleeplessness, in sun-lit brooding; in the solitude of crowded avenues and swarming streets; she was an actual presence again in his life—she was here, bodily, unchanged—unchanged!—for he had conceived a strange idea that she must have changed physically, that her appearance had altered. He knew it was a grotesquely senseless idea, but it clung to him, and he had nursed it unconsciously.

He had, truly enough, expected to encounter her in life again—somewhere; though what he had been preparing to see, Heaven alone knew; but certainly not the supple, laughing girl he had known—that smooth, slender, dark-eyed, dainty visitor who had played at marriage with him through a troubled and unreal dream; and was gone when he awoke—so swift the brief two years had passed, as swift in sorrow as in happiness.

Shrinking from the clamoring tumult of his thoughts he looked around, hard-eyed and drawn of mouth, to find Miss Erroll riding a length in advance, her gaze fixed resolutely between her horse's ears.

How much had she noticed? How much had she divined?—this straight, white-throated young girl, with her self-possession and her rounded, firm young figure, this child with the pure, curved cheek, the clear, fearless eyes, untainted, ignorant, incredulous of shame, of evil.

Severe, confident, untroubled in the freshness of adolescence, she rode on, straight before her, symbolic innocence leading the disillusioned. And he followed, hard, dry eyes narrowing, ever narrowing and flinching under the smiling gaze of the dark-eyed, red-mouthed ghost that sat there on his saddle bow, facing him, almost in his very arms.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR GIRL.

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

LOVE is a dizzy flight in a balloon; marriage the downward plunge into cold water.

The woman who has nothing but boy children may take some consolation in the fact that none of them is doomed to grow up and marry a man like his father.

Some men make love with the skill and finish of a child, practicing five-finger exercises—the only difference being that in time the child learns better.

Whether a man admires constancy in the woman he loves or not depends a great deal on whether she is constant to him or to the rival he is trying to cut out.

When a man wants a woman to do anything beneath her he usually starts out by telling her how much above such things he knows she is.

It is a toss up whether it is more annoying to have a husband who gets jealous at everything or more mortifying to have one who gets jealous at nothing.

"Just once more," is the Devil's best argument.

It is easier to love a man after he has lost his fortune and his reputation than to love him after he has lost his front hair and his waist line.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD VS. WOMAN SUFFRAGE

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD lately took occasion to speak disapprovingly of equal suffrage. She urged, among other things, that women would not use their voting privilege and then, inconsistently, expressed the fear that their vote would promote the cause of socialism. Israel Zangwill, in a letter addressed to the London Times he assumes that the key to her opposition is her thorough understanding of women. "As a woman novelist," he says, "she knows women too well, and despises them for their weakness, their follies and their caprices. Being a woman, Mrs. Ward draws the conclusion that her own sex cannot be trusted with a vote."

RACE MADE CLOSER BY CHICAGO BEATING BROWNS AND NAPS HITTING TIGERS

RING

BATTLES TO BE FOUGHT ON COAST NEXT WEEK THE BEST SERIES SINCE 1890

COMMENT

BROWNS CAN'T DEPEND UPON 'KID' PITCHERS

Veterans Must Do the Work These Trying Times, Yesterday's Game Shows.

By JAMES CRUSINBERRY

WITH the American League pennant almost within touching distance, Fielder Jones and his brainy White Sox from Chicago slaughtered the three young pitchers of the Browns yesterday and won a decisive victory, 13 to 3, which has put them right on the heels of St. Louis and Detroit again. Manager McAleer has now decided that in such a struggle as this, young pitchers are of no use and he will think several times before one of them will get a chance to pitch another game this season.

Graham, Bailey and Criss, all first-year men in the big League, attempted to score a victory over those veteran White Sox, and though Graham got away nicely and the Browns were one run to the good until the seventh inning, it seemed all the time that the killing was sure to take place.

It came with vengeance in the seventh inning. Four runs were made off the trembling Graham. Then Bailey took up the work, and there was such a slaughter as the Browns have not experienced this season when the Sox welted the ball all over the field and scored eight runs off Young Bill. With but two men out it was necessary to call Criss to the mound to get that third man out before sundown. One run was scored off the big pinch hitter, but in the ninth he retired the side without a tally.

McAleer took a chance yesterday on Graham only because he is a left-hander, and southpaw pitchers should be more effective against the Sox than right-handers. McAleer had his fears of a young head in the box as well as the wise fans who watched the game, but still he considered it worthy of a trial. Graham worked nicely for seven innings, though some startling fielding by his mates preserved him that long.

One Misplay, Then Disaster.

In the seventh inning the outfielders fell down on him when the first batter lifted a pop fly that was allowed to fall unmolested to the ground, and immediately Graham blew up. At the same time the attack of the White Sox became vicious. It was enough to take the heart out of an inexperienced twirler, and Graham died in a tremor.

Because Cleveland whipped the Detroit Tigers once more, the Browns lost nothing by the beating with the Sox. But the last three days has so changed the aspect of the American League race that the pennant may be said to belong to any one of the first four clubs now. Detroit is still a game and a half to the good and still tumbling, yesterday's defeat being the sixth straight for the champions.

The Browns are second with the White Sox third, only a half a game back. Cleveland is then but one game behind the White Sox, so only three full games stand between the first and fourth teams in the race.

If the four Western teams continue to slaughter each other for the next 10 days and then the Eastern clubs should come along and outplay the West on the next invasion, it is possible that a percentage of about .550 would win the American League pennant and the flag would go, not to a team that struck a winning streak, but to the one that could escape the most defeats.

Browns and Sox Nervy.

It appears that the team that can display the greatest nerve among the four Western clubs is going to win the pennant. When it comes to nerve, the Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns should lead. The Browns with experienced pitchers like Howell, Dineen or Rhoades are just as game as the White Sox. Walsh, Smith and White are the three twirlers that Fielder Jones expects to pull his team to the front. It must be admitted that the White Sox have a slight advantage in the pitching department.

But the Browns are better hitters and will put up fully as strong a defense as the White Sox. Detroit is tumbling miserably and it begins to look as though she will not recover itself in time to save the pennant. Cleveland will be a surprise if she pulls to the front.

Good for Seven Innings.

The Browns put up a grand defense for seven innings yesterday, and during that time squeezed home one run in a clever manner that even baffled the veteran White Sox. The sterling defense kept the spirits of young Graham up and he swung his lengthy left arm in a beautiful way, so that the big crowd of rooters had hoped of his shutting out the Sox.

But the very minute that the defense broke on him he went into the air. It came in the seventh inning, when "Big Jawn" Anderson, who had been put in the game because of his reputation for slaughtering left-handed pitchers, was safe on a little, easy fly, that really belonged to Heidrick. He was coming in after it, as was Stone, and Hartzell was going back. They all stopped at the same time and let the ball fall safely to the earth. There was a yell of confidence from the Sox players and Graham's heart arose and stuck in his throat.

What followed is well known. Another single and a safe bunt filled the bases and then after one man had lifted a short fly, two singles in succession drove home four runs. Graham was not equal to the task of putting out the veteran batters when the bases were filled with players. He lost his big, easy-swinging delivery. The ball was clouted hard and the defense of the Browns wavered, to make matters worse.

And Then Bailey!

Bailey, who took Graham's place in the next inning, was hammered harder than any St. Louis pitcher has been this season. He couldn't even last out one inning. He was wild and ineffective and when McAleer took him out of the game, with but two men out, he didn't even know where the bench was. Criss finished the game and his wildness was noticeable, but he managed to get the game finished with but one more run coming in, and the spectators were glad when it was all over.

McAleer will not trust to his "kid" pitchers again, unless he feels that he can take a chance on one of the left-handers against Detroit, the latter part of this week. But if the Browns are to land a pennant this season it is up to Harry Howell, Bill Dineen, Rube Waddell and Jack Powell.

Crusinberry's Comment on the Game

Fielder Jones is expecting to use Ed Walsh and Frank Smith for the two remaining games here. The White Sox and Browns will not meet again after this series unless they should feel compelled to play off one postponed game in Chicago.

No two teams in the American League have struggled harder against each other than the Browns and White Sox. They have played 19 games now, the Sox being the victors in 10 and the Browns in nine. With but two exceptions they have alternated in winning throughout the season.

John Anderson is far from being a strong first baseman, and after Manager Jones felt that the game was safe when his team scored four runs, he removed Anderson and put Isbell back on first base.

Isbell had the distinction of scoring two runs in the same inning. He started that eighth inning by being safe on Bailey's error and he scored that time, then scored again after Criss was in the box.

Fourteen men went to bat for the Sox in the eighth inning. Nine of them scored.

Wonder if the White Sox feel that any ailuck is to come to them because they made thirteen runs?

Freddie Parent twisted his ankle in the mad whirl around the bases in that eighth inning. He gave his place to Jakey Atz, but expects to be back in the game today.

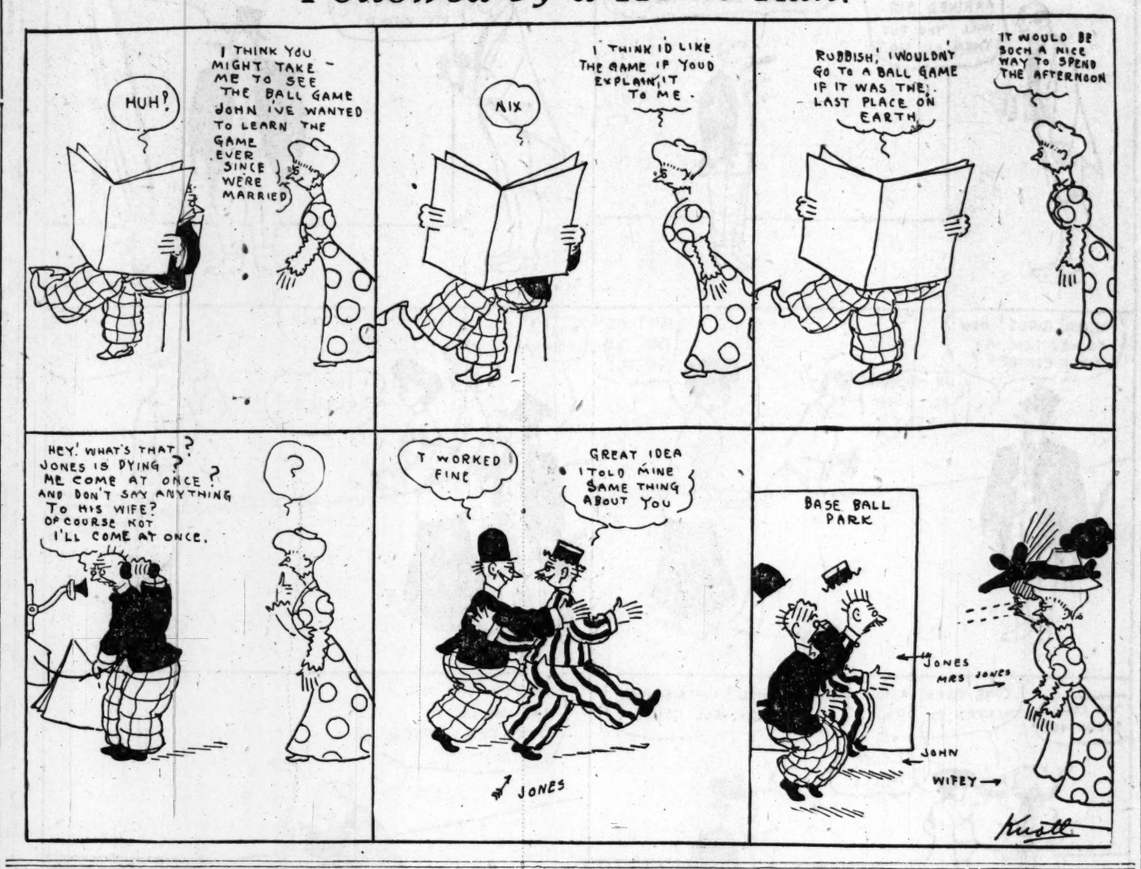

Dode Criss tore off one of his characteristic two-baggers in the eighth inning, the only time he was at bat. It was a line drive to the flag pole and brought Sid Smith home from second. Smith had just lined a two-bagger that barely escaped Pat Dougherty.

Heidrick has not made a hit in the two games against the Sox, though he was robbed of one yesterday when he lined to John Anderson. Hartzell was on first base at the time and a double play was the result.

The fans will talk for many weeks of that catch Schweitzer made in the first inning. It was the best piece of fielding seen on the grounds this year. Fielder Jones was on first when Dougherty lined one that looked as though it would tear a board out of the right-field fence. Jones started home on the dead run, but young Schweitzer was after the ball with lengthy strides and landed it with a final leap against the fence, taking it with one hand and shooting to Tom Jones for a double play.

Roy Hartzell looks better at shortstop than in the outfield. He is a natural infielder and handles a ground ball beautifully, while there is no one who can beat him in throwing across the diamond.

Followed by a Home Run.

CARDINALS HAND CUBS HARD JOLT

St. Louis Wins Out in Tenth, Errors Prolonging the Contest.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Manager McCloskey may not be the Moses to lead his club into a championship job this year, but he is getting a number of pats on the back for his work yesterday when his team handed the Cubs and set them back while the Giants were climbing toward the top with a doubleheader victory.

The Cubs, with the pennant in sight, are additionally nonplussed by the fact that Mordecai Brown, the great three-fingered curve thrower, will be out of the game for some days. The loss of Brown at this juncture is in itself a matter for worriment, but the fact that his failure to be in form at this critical time will compell Chance to call off the proposed double header, which a postponed game from May 4 had made possible.

St. Louis tried hard enough to lose the game behind Beebe, who speeded the Fray. In fact the support of this pitcher was something of a travesty on the game and at the beginning of the ninth the Cubs had the game all but won, score 4 to 1.

Beebe showed in excellent form, but one by one the Cubs piled up runs on offenses by Shaw, Murray and Morris, and dumb playing by the infield. Murray's complete muff at a critical time was the weirdest feature of the day.

With the game apparently safe in hand Reulbach eased up for a moment and then was battered to the lot corners, the Cardinals tying the score, 4 to 4. That he was not defeated then and there was due to a wonderful catch by Del Howard. In the tenth, The Cardinals won out on Murray's triple and Delehanty's single, score 5 to 4.

MARQUARD SCHWARZ WILL SWIM NO MORE IN RACES

M. A. C.'s Star Paddler and Present National 50-Yard Champion Too Busy to Train.

Marquard Schwarz, National A. A. U. indoor swimming champion at 50 yards, and considered one of the fastest men in the country at any distance up to 300 yards, declares that he is through with the game and will not compete in any more races.

Schwarz's friends tried to induce him to enter the 10-mile swim, but Schwarz declined the issue. His brother, Otto Schwarz, another fast man, will enter for the big event to be decided in the Mississippi River next Monday.

Schwarz declares that speed swimming is becoming too much of a business.

HOBLITZELLE GOES TO REDS NATIONAL COMMISSION RULES

Infielder Who Has Been With Cardinals Two Weeks Lost to Club.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 2.—The St. Louis Cardinals will not get the young star infielder, Hoblitzelle, formerly of the Wheeling Club, in the Central League. The National Commission has decided that he rightfully belongs to the Cincinnati Club.

Wheeling secured the use of Hoblitzelle on the condition that his ownership should remain with the Clarksville Club. Manager McCloskey then purchased the player from the Wheeling Club, while the Cincinnati Club bought him from Clarksville. The Commission decided that he belonged to Clarksville at the time, and the sale to Cincinnati was legitimate, while Wheeling had no right to sell him.

Hoblitzelle has been with the Cardinals for more than two weeks, though he has not been played pending a decision by the Commission.

Moran Has $10,000 to Bet That He Defeats Attell

English Boxer Growing More Confident Each Day—Nelson In Great Shape For Gans Fight

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—Three pugilistic contests, each involving the championship of its respective class, will be decided in California next week.

One of them is an international match between Owen Moran, the English champion, and Abe Attell, the holder of the featherweight title of the United States.

The other two are between Stanley Ketchel and "Billy" Papke, for the middleweight championship, and Battling Nelson and Joe Gans, for the lightweight title.

In every case the fights are what might be termed as return matches, as all have met their respective opponents in previous battles.

Ketchel and Papke and Moran and Attell will fight Sept. 7, the former two at Los Angeles and the latter at San Francisco, both contests taking place in the afternoon.

Two days later, Sept. 9, Joe Gans and Battling Nelson will meet for the third time, this fight also taking place in the afternoon.

Not since the famous boxing carnival at New Orleans in 1892, when Jim Corbett won the championship from John L. Sullivan, have so many important ring engagements been scheduled to come off within three days.

The boxers are all declared to be fit at this time, and tickets have already been placed on sale in this city and Los Angeles for the two fights occurring on Sept. 7, Labor day.

Joe Gans, who lost the lightweight championship to Nelson on July 4, is now declared to be in much better physical shape than when he was doing his preparatory work for the previous engagement.

The betting, however, so far as it has developed, has been in favor of Nelson, the odds being 10 to 8.

Ketchel is a very strong favorite over Papke, and in the Moran-Attell battle the American rules favorite at 10 to 9.

Battling Nelson is declared by experts to be in the best shape he has been in since he fought at Goldfield. His weight is now 140 pounds and he will make no strenuous effort to get down to 133 until about Saturday. Willie Britt says Nelson can take on or rid himself of weight quicker than any fighter he ever knew.

Bat's sparring partners are in fear of him, as he lashes into them as if it were Gans in front of him. He has strengthened his punch by hitting a big sand bag.

The question that is now puzzling the sports is whether Gans' skill, cunning and power of punch can overmatch Bat's strength and stamina.

Owen Moran, the speedy little Britisher, not only believes he will beat Abe Attell, but he is willing to bet $10,000 of his own coin that he turns the trick.

So tickled is the little fellow at having made the weight with such ease that he sent that amount over to Tom Corbett last night, urging him to get the money down for him at the best odds possible. And Owen has coin. He is a property owner in England, possessing four houses in Worcester.

In that part of the country each dwelling house is named. Owen calls his "Nell," "Attell," "Frisco" and "Coima." If he wins over Attell this time he declares he will erect another house and call it "Abie."

Moran will stop boxing on Thursday. His mornings in the meantime will be taken up by road work and rowing.

Ketchel 3-to-1 Favorite Over Papke With No Money Backing "Thunderbolt"

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 2.—Stanley Ketchel is a 3-to-1 favorite over Billy Papke for their middleweight championship fight here on Labor day afternoon, and, while there is an abundance of Ketchel money here and more coming from San Francisco, there is no Papke money in sight.

These long odds are caused by the fast that Ketchel has been knocking out his sparring partners, big and little, every day and showing such sensational form in workouts that few fans believe him anything less than a marvel. One knocked-out sparring partner, Paul Ackley, was unconscious for eight hours.

Both fighters are in fine condition and near to weight. Ketchel will have no trouble in making the weight, as it was feared he would, being down within striking distance now. He has made such fine progress in training he cut it out for one day, perhaps through being rather shy on sparring partners.

The partners were forced to put on armor in the shape of baseball catchers' protectors. They will work up to Sunday afternoon.

Thousands of fans are at both camps each day and the house should break all local records.

HACKENSCHMIDT SEEKING ANOTHER BOUT WITH GOTCH

Former Wrestling Champion Says, However, He Will Not Compete Again in America.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—As soft as a pillow and as fat as a butcher, George A. Hackenschmidt, the wrestler, is drifting about England again, arranging for a series of exhibitions in October. Despite his appearance "Hack" says he feels as well as he ever did and professes that the dearest wish of his heart is another bout with Frank Gotch, the American who wrested the world's title from him in Chicago.

The Russian Lion says, however, that he would not think of wrestling Gotch again in America or with an American for a referee. He is still harping on how he was defeated by unfair means.

Remembering the reports from Aix la Chapelle after Hackenschmidt was operated upon, English sports are skeptical of the big fellow and it is doubtful whether he could find anyone to back him in another go with Gotch.

"Hack's" two paralyzed fingers are apparently in good working order and his knee, though not as good as new, is rapidly getting stronger and losing its stiffness.

Lasker Wins Another Game.

MUNICH, Sept. 2.—Emanuel Lasker won the fifth game in his match against Tarrasch of Nuremburg for the chess championship of the world in 38 moves. The game lasted five hours. Dr. Lasker has now won four games and Dr. Tarrasch one.

Griffin Defeats Kelly.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—Phil Griffin of Southwark won from Freddy Kelly of North Penn in the windup at the Douglass Athletic Club last night in six fast rounds that was full of action from start to finish.

LANGFORD LETS JEANETTE STAY

Negro Refuses to Knock Out One of Own Race and Crowd Hisses.

BY JOHN POLLOCK.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—That two colored pugilists will not put up the same fierce battle that they would if they had a white man for an opponent was again demonstrated in the contest between Sam Langford of Boston and Joe Jeanette, the negro fighters, at the National Athletic Club last night.

In the six rounds that they fought Langford easily had the better of the contest, as he gave Jeanette a good walloping, and also floored him three times, twice in the opening round with a left swing on the jaw and a right swing on the kidneys, and again in the fifth round with a short left hook to the jaw.

Langford could have put Jeanette away if he wanted to, but each time after Joe got upon his feet Langford was away from him, and, as a result, Jeanette not only recovered from the blow, but he also got in a number of jabs to Langford's face and body. Another thing noticeable about Langford's showing against Jeanette was the large number of blows that he missed.

In his fights with white men he seldom missed a blow that he aimed for them and when once they went down from a smash in the jaw he was ready with a knockout punch when they got upon their feet.

In the fifth round Langford boxed so tamely after he dropped Jeanette for the count of eight that the spectators began to hiss him for not wading into Jeanette, and Referee Charley White had to order them to come and box.

JUST BEFORE THE BATTLE BOTH STRONG ON BOASTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—"I will win with a knockout," declared Tommy Murphy.

"I will lick Murphy sure, and probably put him out before the limit," declared Leach Cross.

With these expressions of confidence Tommy Murphy, the pride of Harlem, and Leach Cross, the East Side champion, are ready for their six-round battle here tonight.

There is not much to choose between the two lads. Both have met in the ring and the advantages secured by either was slight. Betting on the affair is light.

COBB DRAFTED BY THE BROWNS, WHO GET EIGHT OTHERS ALSO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 2.—The Paul Cobb case was definitely settled yesterday, so far as St. Louis is concerned, and the report that the Browns had purchased the brother of the American League's champion hitter, together with a Joplin second baseman for $500 was punctured. McAleer denied the purchase at the time it was first announced and did not even know the second baseman he was supposed to have acquired.

Cobb was merely drafted and may not even report to the Browns this season. The Browns turned a trick by drafting Cobb, in that they prevented any other team from getting him. Cobb was hitting well in the Missouri Valley League and, although merely a youth, was highly spoken of.

The following drafting list shows that the Browns have acquired nine new men by draft. The Cardinals have added but one player to the list, McLauren.

Following is the official list of drafts for both leagues given out by the National Baseball Commission:

American League.

St. Louis—From Shreveport, Arnold; Haverhill, Andrews; San Antonio, Griggs; Lancaster, Walter Justus; Wilkesbarre, Miller; Winnipeg, Walter Grum; Joplin, Paul Cobb; Dallas, Charles Miller and Peters.

New York—From Austin, Catcher Killifer; Hartford, Pitcher Wilson; Baltimore, Pitcher Schmidt; Gulfport, Pitcher Schultz; Williamsport, Third Baseman Wolverton; Hartford, Second Baseman Gardner; Omaha, Third Baseman Austin; Richmond, John Quinn and R. H. Revelle.

Detroit—From Fort Wayne, Harry Corns.

Boston—From Trenton, Murray; Johnstown, Brady; Houston, Aiken; Evansville, French; Aberdeen, Thompson; Columbus, James.

Cleveland—From New Orleans, Dexter; Zanesville, Fisher; Los Angeles, Easterly; Montreal, Stanley; Rochester, Berger; Gulfport, Lively; McKeesport, J. Miller.

Washington—From Minneapolis, Fred Buelow; Portland, Bobby Grooms; San Antonio, Collins; Fort Worth, Harry Deiters.

Chicago—From Danville, N. Walsh; Memphis, Owens; Fort Wayne, Elston; Utica, Burrell; Dallas, Cooper.

Philadelphia—From Milwaukee, Curtis; Macon, Stowers.

National League.

New York—From St. Paul, B. Meyers; Peoria, Keupper; Savannah, Klevers; Meridian, Rapp.

Boston—From Kansas City, Essick; San Francisco, Beck; Cedar Rapids, Simon; Augusta, Coles, Hehnhorst; Lansing, Pierce, Thomas; Paris, Staley.

Pittsburg—From Atlanta, Sitton, Brandon, Nelson; Elmira, Esmond; Marion, Tate.

Philadelphia—From Johnstown, Johnson; Williamsport, Shean; Toledo, Barbeau.

Chicago—From Louisville, Stanley, Rockford, Butcher; Newcastle, Walmar; Madison, Liese; Wausau, Miller; Mansfield, Channell; Buffalo, Archer; Indianapolis, Hayden; Lancaster, White.

Cincinnati—From Galveston, Smith.

St. Louis—From Augusta, McLauren.

Brooklyn—From Altoona, Starnagle.

WRAY'S COLUMN.

IT IS a trying time in the American League pennant race—one pregnant wic hypothetical questions, with great "IFS," answers to which are all but impossible. Among the questions that have been propounded and which seem to require a Cagliostro to diagnose is one that will arouse comment.

McAleer's need right now is twofold. Gentlemen who like to run a baseball club without the responsibility of financing it without the odium of failure attaching to their policies—and this includes almost every fan—have it that McAleer's team would be complete if it had one more first-class man.

But just where that man is to be placed and what his function is to be has not been agreed upon by any means. It was suggested that if the Browns had Cy Young they would win this season's pennant in the Johnsonian organization. On the other hand, it was urged that if the team had a hitter like Hans Wagner it would romp home.

The question resolves it self into the need of a batter or a pitcher, and which is the paramount necessity seems to be a quantity not unanimously fixed.

Timely Hits Lacking.

ON what the Browns showed in the East, as between a pitcher and a first-class hitter, the answer is easy. A Wagner or a Mike Donlin for the outfield is the quantity that is needed.

On the Eastern trip the Browns had nobody who seemed able to hit reliably when the necessity demanded a safety. Time after time opportunities were wasted through want of a single, a want that caused the loss of the game. John Powell, pitching the game of his life, a two-hit affair, could not win because the men behind him were unable to hit consistently.

On the whole, the work of the pitchers in the East was good. Good enough to win with batting support.

Teams Weak on Pitchers.

AS the race now stands, every team out for the American League flag is fatally weak in pitchers with the possible exception of Cleveland, which ought to profit through the return of Addie Joss to his best form. Chicago seems to be shouldering too heavy a burden on two pitchers—Walsh and Smith.

Detroit has never been first-class in pitchers. The Browns' staff is rounding to form and in the best shape of the season right now.

Surely what the club needs is a hitter. Mike Donlin, or Ty Cobb at his best, could surely turn the balance in the race that is now so close a hair in the scale will turn the balance.

Other Clubs Weakening.

CONSIDERING the fact that the Browns were so unmercifully beaten yesterday and the fact that the club was unable to even quit its Eastern campaign on even terms with its opponents abroad, it seems a far cry to say that the team has now a better chance to win the flag than at any other time during the season.

This belief is not due to any increase in the efficiency of the team, but to the fact that the other clubs seem to be weakening. Detroit has lost seven successive games. Chicago, although going well, will have to find another pitcher to take his regular turn with Smith and Walsh before it can be considered stable enough to stand the drive of 35 or more games that remain to be played.

Cleveland, the unfortunate team of the League for many seasons, will break a long standing hoodoo if it comes to the front and view of its many failures will surprise everyone by winning.

The Browns showed signs of recovering their batting eyes when they hit Ed Walsh for a victory. That is the only quality wanting in the club and it seems likely that, after their lapse in hitting at least a few of the club's batting eyes will get back to normal focus.

Great Game Until—

THAT game of yesterday can be thrown out, even as far as the pitchers are concerned. It was a freak finish to a game that was replete with the most brilliant defense ever witnessed in St. Louis. It was a real world championship battle—the ideal of it, until Graham and Bailey went to fragments in face of the terrific fusillade by the White Sox.

Bailey and Graham will both do much better, and will be strong factors against such clubs, as have a particular abhorrence of left-hand pitchers.

Thus, the Browns go into the stretch run on equal terms as regards pitchers, superior to any club in the League on defense, well enough equipped behind the bat, weak on base running and still shy on batting.

Other clubs have weaknesses, too, that offset those of the Browns, and there seems no reason to believe that the team which beats the Browns will not win the flag.

NEW YORK owes a debt of gratitude to the Cardinals, notwithstanding the St. Louis team won a double-header from McGraw's men at a critical time in the history of the present race. By defeating Chicago, the Cardinals permitted the New York team to crawl away from the Cubs, considered still the most formidable team in the race for the National League honors.

Every game helps two-fold at this stage of the race, and when the Western teams go East they probably will find New York entrenched behind a fair lead. If the Cardinals can trim the Cubs another game they will more than have satisfied McGraw, as he was probably figuring the St. Louis series a dead loss for the local club.

RECOLLECTION of previous incidents that have occurred on the Polo Grounds at critical times is causing many fans to wonder if the Wesetrn clubs will be subjected to any of the former methods of the McGraw-Friedman-Brush regime, involving the bulldozing of umpires and opposing players, and bushwhacking for any little advantage possible. Pittsburg and Chicago probably will see to it that their rights are not infringed upon, and in these days it is doubtful if McGraw can get away with much in the bulldozing line.

The League has seen the necessity of keeping its skirts free from scandal of this sort, and probably McGraw has reached a belated appreciation of the fact. But there are still many who figure that the Western clubs will have no chance to come away from New York with any advantage, should the race between the clubs continue close. A pessimistic view, perhaps, but truly Mr. McGraw has partly earned it.

CONNETT AND ANDERSON IN TRIPLE A TENNIS EVENT

State Champions in Doubles Will Oppose McDonald and Gleeson for Club Title.

Malcolm D. MacDonald and Paul Gleeson will oppose William Connett and Byron Anderson in the final match for the tennis championship in doubles of the Triple A on the club's courts in Forest Park, Saturday afternoon. The match is expected to draw out a big gallery.

Connett and Anderson are the present holders of the State championship. MacDonald and Gleeson are a strong pair and will be hard to beat. MacDonald lost out in the single yesterday to Ed Serrano, after a hard match. Serrano won the first set., 7—5, but MacDonald won the second, 6—4. Serrano won the third and deciding set, 6—4. The defeat of MacDonald was quite a surprise.

Joe Dickson gave Paul Gleeson a hard match. Dickson won the first set, 9—7, but Gleeson won the second set, 6—0, and the third, 6—4. Gleeson is the favorite to win the tournament.

HAYES TURNS HIS MARATHON VICTORY INTO MONEY-MAKER

Runner to Appear on Stage in New York Monday Night.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—John J. Hayes, the Marathon winner, has decided to take advantage of the wave of popularity on which he is now floating, and will appear next Monday night in a vaudeville sketch at Keith & Proctor's. He will appear in the running suit he wore in the famous Marathon race and the trophy which he won will be exhibited in the foyer of the theater.

While his contract now calls for only a night appearance, it is possible that he will make a swing around the Keith & Proctor circuit.

PALACE TENPIN LEAGUE WILL BE REORGANIZED

Jules Schmitt, president of the Palace League, one of the strongest tenpin organizations in the city, has called a meeting for tomorrow night to be held at the Palace alleys for the purpose of reorganizing for the season.

Last year the Palace, Olde Parks, Witter-Christens and Schneidts, four of the teams that were in the Palace League, also bowled in the City League. It is probable that the same four teams will enter for the Palace League again this season. Some of the best scores of last year were recorded by teams of the Palace League. The Palace Handicap League will also be reorganized tomorrow night.

TOWN IS AT WAR OVER ARREST OF CRUSADE LEADER

Pastor Charged Neighbor With Wife-Beating and Was Sued for Defamation.

HELD FOR DISTURBANCE

All Cases Are Dropped and Saloons Hold Fort, but Controversy Still Rages.

The town of Worden, Ill., in Madison County, nine miles northeast of Edwardsville, is bitterly divided over the recent arrest of the Rev. Curwein Henley, pastor of the Worden Methodist Church, on a charge of disturbing the peace, and over a damage suit filed against him at the same time.

The disturbance case ended in the pastor's discharge, and the suit, in which George Vesper, one of the minister's neighbors, charged defamation of character, was withdrawn about the same time. But the controversy growing out of the case is still raging in the town.

Most of Pastor Henley's parishioners and of the members of the other three churches in Worden stand by him, though some are disposed to criticise him for acting hastily. The customers and adherents of Worden's six saloons, who have been in the majority thus far whenever any attempt has been made to make the town "dry," are assailing Henley and are blaming Vesper for "quitting" too easily in his litigation against the minister.

Led Fight on Saloons.

The Rev. Mr. Henley has been a leader in the fight, thus far an unsuccessful fight, on the saloons. He considers this the true explanation of his recent troubles, which have caused him seriously to consider requesting a transfer to some other field.

Aug. 19, while on the lawn in front of his home, the minister heard sounds from Vesper's home which caused him to think that Mrs. Vesper needed help.

Several men were standing at a nearby corner, and Pastor Henley called to them: "Get a policeman. George Vesper is beating his wife."

The sounds next door ceased, no policeman came, and the neighbors did not venture upon Vesper's premises. But the next day a policeman did call on the minister, and arrested him, on Vesper's complaint, for disturbing the peace.

Pastor Sued for Damages.

Before Pastor Henley had recovered from his suprise sufficiently to call a bondsman he was notified of Vesper's suit against him for defamation of character.

The disturbance case was set for trial in Magistrate Chapman's court, but the minister took a change of venue to Justice Worden.

At his trial Pastor Henley testified that he heard Mrs. Vesper screaming and sobbing and that, owing to stories he had heard about Vesper's treatment of his wife, he thought it his duty to call help.

He declared that he believed the suit, as well as his arrest, was inspired by the saloon element, and said that one Worden saloon keeper had told Vesper, in his presence, to go ahead with the suit, and that he, the saloon keeper, would stand by him.

Minister Acquitted in Court.

Vesper testified that he was not in the house at the time of the minister's outcry, but was outside, playing with his two children. He denied having given any occasion for a charge of mistreating his family.

A former policeman testified that he had arrested Vesper for striking his wife, and court records were shown to prove that Vesper had been fined for the offense. On this showing, the jury discharged the minister.

The damage suit was soon after dropped by Vesper, who declared that the jury in the disturbance case was "packed" with church members, and that he foresaw the same result in a civil suit.

CRUSH AT AFFINITY BOOTH

Attraction so Popular at Bazar That It Is to Be Repeated.

The affinity booth at St. Mark's Catholic Church bazar Tuesday night, on the church lawn, Page boulevard and Academy avenue, caused such a crush that the bazar is to be repeated Wednesday night.

The affinity booth threw the other attractions into the shade. Those who went in did not know what they were going to see and when they came out they did not tell what they had seen, partly because they were cautioned not to, but chiefly because they were not proud of what had happened to them, though they advised everybody else to go in. The decorations and illuminations were elaborate.

TO STOP RUPTURE CHAFING.

Effective Way to Heal the Raw, Inflamed Parts.

To stop the burning and irritation of chafing, try the following: First bathe the parts with warm water and then put a cloth wet with X-Zalia directly on the chafed surface. Keep wetting the cloth with this liquid, which can be bought at any drug store. This treatment will heal the raw, inflamed parts in a single day, besides relieving the pain and strengthening the ruptured parts.

KNIGHTS TO FEAST OCTOBER 12

Order of Father Mathew to Banquet Supreme Council.

WILLIAMS HAD ALIBI PREPARED

Detective Investigating Board Walk Shooting Found Affidavits Awaiting Him.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 2.—Concealment is no longer made of the fact that Detective Wilson was confronted in Baltimore and Philadelphia with conditions that suggest the employment of money and influence to hush up the investigation of the shooting of Charles B. Roberts here, while in the company of Mrs. Williams of Baltimore.

Wilson denies emphatically that he was "approached" in any manner, but he says he could not throw off the impression that as he worked he was being "killed by kindness." Instead of meeting with difficulty in establishing an alibi for W. S. G. Williams, husband of the society matron who was riding in the roller chair with Roberts when the latter was shot, Wilson found awaiting him affidavits which told of Williams' presence in Baltimore at the time of the shooting.

Mr. Roberts continues to improve slightly, but the physicians in the City Hospital defer positive announcement that his recovery is assured.

Mrs. Williams Stops Talking.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 2.—Now that Mrs. W. S. G. Williams has said that it was a robber and no other who shot Charles Roberts on the board walk at Atlantic City last Wednesday night, all Baltimore agrees that it was a robber and no other who did the shooting. Mrs. Williams has relapsed again into silence, at the behest of H. Cavendish Darrell, her husband's law partner, who is on guard at Long Green today, and tells all callers that Mrs. Williams is keeping silent by his advice.

REAR ADMIRAL GLASS DEAD

He Commanded a Cruiser at the Battle of Manila Bay.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—Rear Admiral Henry Glass died yesterday afternoon at Polo Robles Hot Springs, whither he was taken Monday from his home in Berkeley. He had never recovered from an operation performed several months ago.

Rear Admiral Henry Glass was born in Kentucky Jan. 7, 1844. He was appointed to the naval academy in 1860 and in 1863 was made Major. He served through the Civil War, commanded the cruiser Charleston at the battle of Manila Bay and was promoted to be a Rear Admiral Oct. 9, 1901.

UNUSUAL NEWS OUTPUT FROM FACTORY AT WINSTED, CONN.

All Hands Worked Overtime—These True Fish Stories Are the Result.

WINSTED, Conn., Sept. 2.—Frank Moore, Elliot Alvord and Herbert Thoms, the latter a brother of Mayor Thoms of Waterbury and a student at the Yale Medical School, left Camp Yale at the Second Narrows in Highland Lake yesterday in a canoe in quest of frogs. Moore was in the act of landing a large frog with a hook baited with red flannel when a motor boat whizzed by and a 16-inch pickerel jumped into the canoe.

Otto Prowe, while closing the gates at the Ensign Bockford Company's pond in Avon yesterday, saw a large water snake trying to swallow a 9-inch trout. With a long stick he pulled the snake out of the water, but it still clung to the trout and it was not until the snake was killed that the fish could be liberated.

"Jim Crow" School Law Illegal.

GUTHRIE, Ok., Sept. 2.—Judge A. H. Huston, in the District Court yesterday, declared unconstitutional the Oklahoma separate school law providing separate school boards and separate schools for negroes in the new State.

OKLAHOMA SEEKS TO OUST FRISCO

M., K. & T. Also Faces Eviction for Transferring Suit to Federal Court.

The Frisco and the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad systems face annulment of their right to operate in Oklahoma and heavy fines if they disregard the ouster order of the new State government.

Oklahoma has a statute requiring all damage suits against railroads to be tried in the State courts if they originate there. The penalty for violation of that statute is a forfeiture of license to operate in Oklahoma.

Recently the Frisco, resting its rights on the United States Constitution, which provides that all suits between citizens of different states may be removed from State to Federal courts, had a damage suit against it transferred to the United States Court. This action was followed by an order from Assistant Secretary of State Leo Meyer revoking the road's Oklahoma license.

Any road disregarding such an ouster order is liable to a fine of from $1000 to $5000 for every day it operates in violation of the order.

The revocation has been suspended by an injunction obtained by the road and a similar order about to be issued against the "Katy" for a like reason, has been held up by Gov. Haskell pending a decision in the Frisco case.

THE DIRECTOIRE STOCKING; SEE!

It Is Split on the Side and Opening Is Laced.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—After the directoire gown, the directoire stocking.

San Francisco has been stirred by the advent of this new sheath garment. It is being exhibited in the smart shop windows in Van Ness avenue, and the women are crowding to inspect it.

The garment is really better imagined than described; perhaps better seen than either. It starts with a foot, as stockings have done since the days when our grandmothers knitted them from heavy gray wool, and is quite conventional until it reaches the ankle. Then it splits, unobtrusively at first, a mere hint of a slit. As it goes up it widens, and widens, and widens, until the gay little lacing that holds it together is spanning a space of three inches, and the wide finishing bow is—well, independent as it were.

Jack London $500

To stimulate a literary spirit and originality we will pay $500 to the person who most nearly predicts the Ending of Jack London's Latest and Greatest Novel

"MARTIN EDEN"

It must not be a mere guess at the end so far as Martin Eden is concerned, but should outline the final results as to character also. Said to be in many respects a thinly veiled story of the author's own early life—the throbbing, soul-stirring story of struggle, desperation, courage—of failure and achievement—of mighty impulses animating an eager, earnest, ambitious soul—of the inspiring power of woman's love.

Every page pulses with life—the most INTENSELY HUMAN NOVEL of recent years, possessing all the charm and fascination of Jack London's virile and compelling style.

First installment will appear in the September issue of the

Upon request I will send to you, free and postage paid, my 172-page book for men. In it you will find a great deal of valuable information and records of hundreds of remarkable cures. You will, no doubt, find in it cases described that will fit your own; if you do, you can certainly reason that since I cured them I can cure you.

AFFLICTED WOMEN.

A great many women who are sick go on suffering from year to year in the belief that there is no more than temporary relief in store for them. This is a mistake, and I wish to call the special attention of those to the many letters in my free 68-page book from women whom I have cured, many of whom had suffered for years and many of whom had given up all hope of ever being cured. If you will investigate by writing to those whose names I publish in my book, you will do as they did—come and be cured, and again enjoy health and happiness.

I give consultation and make examinations free of charge. Then, if you place your case in my hands, I will tell you just how much it will cost you to be cured, and just about how long it will take to cure you. This feature, in itself, proves most satisfactory to those afflicted. First, you have an absolute guarantee of a cure, or no pay. After you are cured, all expenses for medicines and doctoring ceases, and you go on enjoying good health and happiness.

Inquire of my former patients and see what they will tell you on the point. Consultation at office, or by mail, free and solicited.

Diseased, "Worn-Out," "Ailing" DEBILITATED MEN

Brought back to their "old self"—Dr. French.

I CHARGE NOTHING TO PROVE MY METHODS WILL CURE YOU.

B. F. French, M. D.

Whatever the cause of Nervous Debility, its effects are irritation and injury to the nervous system, the urinary tract, the organs, varicose veins—it is the loss of life's vitality that makes nervous, sluggish, despondent men, whether old or young, who lack strength.

If men who have tried everything—medical company and institute specialists, "sick men medicine" and similar fakes—could talk to the many who are so thankful to me for making them proud of their existence, they would certainly see me at once, and get the benefit of so much that medical science affords them through a skilled scientific specialist.

$5 to $10 Is All I Charge for Curing Some Cases

I GUARANTEE TREATMENT TO COST YOU NOTHING unless you are absolutely cured and satisfied, and I give you a written certificate to return every dollar you pay me.

FREE CONSULTATION, EXAMINATION

Call or write for information before taking treatment, as you will find my charges lower and treatment quicker and better than elsewhere.

SIX WOMEN AND A MAN LOST WHEN SLOOP IS CAPSIZED

Pleasure Party on Penobscot Bay Thrown Into Water as Tack Is Made.

DEER ISLAND, Me., Sept. 2.—A party of summer visitors went sailing in Penobscot Bay off this island yesterday, in an open sloop owned and managed by Capt. Samuel Haskell. The sloop was thrown on her beam ends and seven of the ten persons on board, six of them women, were drowned.

Those lost were Misses Alice and Eleanor Torro, Washington, D. C.; Miss Kellogg, Baltimore, Md.; Lutie Kellogg, Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Lucy S. Crawley, Philadelphia; Miss Elizabeth G. Evans, Mount Holyoke College, Mass., and Jason C. Hutchins, Bangor, Me.

Capt. Haskell, Deer Isle; Prof. Edwin S. Crawley, Philadelphia, University of Pennsylvania, husband of Mrs. Crawley; Henry B. Evans, Mount Holyoke, brother of Miss Elizabeth Evans, were saved.

The sloop had no forward deck, and the passengers were all perched high on the weather side forward, when Capt. Haskell made a sudden tack that put the entire party in the water, which was running high.

Mrs. Crawley was well known in educational circles of Philadelphia, and Miss Evans had been a teacher in the English department of Mount Holyoke College, Springfield, Mass., for a year.

THE POST-DISPATCH'S DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

East St. Louis News

Special cars will leave the City Hall Square Thursday at 6 p. m. to take the members of the East St. Louis Commercial Club to Allen's Park on the Collinsville road, where the regular monthly meeting will be held. A fried chicken and frog-leg dinner will be served preceding the business session.

The Congressional Convention of the Twenty-second District is being held at Priester's Park Wednesday, at which Congressman W. A. Rodenberg will be officially notified of his nomination for Congress at the recent primaries. The Congressional Committee, composed of the chairman of each County Central Committee in the district, will be organized, and a presidential elector will be selected.

Judge Moyers of the City Court has gone to Benton, Ill., in answer to a telegram announcing the serious illness of his mother.

Mrs. Azora Martin was granted a divorce from Peter Martin on the ground of desertion by Judge Millard in the City Court Wednesday. They were married July 25, 1891, and lived together until Oct. 4, 1904. Mrs. Martin says that her husband now resides at Omaha.

Don't neglect to drop in at Rhodes-Burford these bright days and see their splendid new line of goods for the home on easy terms, and your pocketbook can afford any of it.

ALTON AGAIN WITHOUT WATER

Too Much Liquid in Engine Room, None in Mains.

Alton is without water today for the second time in four days. A broken valve in the "main discharge," the pipe from the pumping station engines into the supply mains, broke at 7 a. m. and the water in the mains, rushing backward, flooded the basement of the pumping station and drowned the boilers.

It was said during the morning that the city would have to do without water until evening, as the flooded basement would have to be pumped out as well as the broken valve repaired.

MOTHER SUMMONED FROM EAST WHEN SCOTT KILLS HIMSELF

Brother-in-Law of "Jack" Tennent Had Been Distressed by Death of Aunt.

Mrs. Sarah Scott of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been summoned to St. Louis by news of the death of her son, Robert Scott, who shot himself at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Frank J. Casey, 4428A McPherson avenue. The news was softened in the message to her, the statement being made that the young man had "suddenly died."

Robert Scott was a brother-in-law of "Jack" Tennent, who committed suicide after the Tennent Shoe Co. failed. His brother, George C. Scott, married Miss Ruth Spencer, daughter of the late Corwin H. Spencer. Scott was a bachelor and had been in ill health for several years. He had been spending the summer at Meramec Highlands. Recently he arrived at his aunt's home for a visit. The death of another aunt, Mrs. Emma Chapman, a few weeks ago, distressed him.

He went to the bathroom of the Casey home Tuesday afternoon and shot himself in the temple. He was dead when members of the family broke the door open.

Is This Why We Are Warmer?
From the Indianapolis News.

Europe is growing colder, says M. Camille Flammarion, the French astronomer. He declares that from actual figures recently obtained he has become certain that the temperature of Europe has been falling. France has been suffering for a long time from an excess of cold weather, the temperature at Paris having been 1 degree below the normal. Other readings show even less favorable results. The fall is more noticeable in the spring than at other periods of the year. Similar conditions are recorded in England, Belgium, Spain, Italy, Austria and Germany.

STOCK MARKET SLUMPS AFTER EARLY ADVANCE

Partial Recovery in the Entire List in the Final Hour.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2, 10 a. m.—Wall street evidently takes an optimistic view of Tuesday's election in Vermont, because the stock market opened higher this morning. In the entire list only two of the prominent issues reacted from the close, Smelting and Pennsylvania being small fractions under their final figures of Tuesday.

Sloss-Sheffield and National Lead were the strongest stocks among the industrials, each opening ¾ higher.

The Steels were up about ⅛ point each, and Amalgamated Copper gained ¼, while Anaconda was unchanged.

Other industrials were either a parity or a small fraction over the close.

Among the rails Missouri Pacific and New York Central were unchanged, and the others were from ¼ to 1 point higher.

The Harriman Pacifics opened very active and strong, Union gaining ¾ on its first sale and Southern moving up 1 point. Canadian Pacific, B. & O., Rock Island preferred and Chicago-Northwestern gained ½ each.

The early trading was somewhat irregular, although the tendency of the market seemed to be upward. At the end of the first half hour Union Pacific was unchanged, Southern gained ⅜ and established another high record, St. Paul advanced 6 and Canadian Pacific declined ½.

American stocks in London were strong, being from ¼ to 1 point higher.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2, 12:30 p. m.—Prices were sharply advanced during the forenoon hours. Southern Pacific was the market leader, moving up 1⅛ above its opening to 109, which is the highest point in its history.

Union Pacific gained ¾ and acted strong.

Reading was very active and advanced ⅞. B. & O. recorded the largest gain, advancing 1½ from its first sale. Advances in other rail stocks ranged from ⅝ to ¾.

The industrial stocks were practically unchanged, and with few exceptions were dull.

Sales to noon were 314,100 shares.

Tooth Set in Diamonds.
From the New York Sun.

Two women met at the bridge table. "You will pardon me," said one, "but I have often remarked one of your rings. I am supposed to be an expert on stones, but I cannot place that one."

Drawing off the ring in question and presenting it for closer inspection, the other said:

"I think it would puzzle you a little. The fact is that is my first baby's first tooth, and I had it set in diamonds as a souvenir of some of my happiest days."

PARIS IS AROUSED OVER ATTITUDE OF GERMANY IN REGARD TO MULAI HAFID

Action Officially Viewed as the Undoing of the Algeira Conference Work.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The action of Germany in breaking up the concert of the Powers with regard to Morocco by notifying the signatories of the Algeciras act that she considered the actual situation demanded the immediate recognition of Mulai Hafid, the usurping Sultan of Morocco, has fallen like a bomb shell in Paris.

The official French view of the situation is this:

"Germany's notification came as a complete surprise to France and Spain, who are engaged in elaborating a program of the demands to be presented Mulai Hafid for the safeguarding of the common interests of Europe and America in Morocco.

"There was no longer any question of upholding Abd-El-Aziz.

"We proposed to force Mulai Hafid to ratify the engagements of his brother, Abd-El-Aziz, toward Europe before recognizing him. Now Germany comes forward with a proposition to recognize Mulai Hafid before he has given any guarantee. It amounts to undoing the work of the Algeciras conference. The Powers must decide between the position of Germany and that of France."

The French press is unanimous in considering Germany's action provocative and possibly productive of an acute crisis

MAN AND BULL FIGHT DUEL TO DEATH IN CATTLE CAR

Shorthorn Made Frantic by Motion of Train Attacks His Keeper.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Penned up alone with an infuriated shorthorn bull in a cattle car, William Calder, 25 years old, was gored to death near Libertyville, Ill., today. The animal was the property of Arthur Meeker, general manager of Armour & Co.

The body of Calder was found by Joseph Flanagan, foreman of Meeker's stock farm, near Libertyville. The bull was standing with its fore feet on the body and bellowing angrily.

That Calder fought desperately for his life was indicated by the fact that he tore the bull's eyelids away in his frantic efforts to blind it and escape.

The bull had never been in a stock car before and was rendered frantic by the motion of the train.

IOWA TO ELECT A SENATOR

Progressives to Join Democrats and Force a Ballot.

DES MOINES, Io., Sept. 2.—Twenty-four Progressives in the House have agreed to vote with the Democrats on the Lambert-Demar resolution to elect a Senator for the short term this session. This will defeat the movement to take a recess Nov. 9 before electing a Senator. Progressives will vote for the resolution this afternoon and insist on passage. This means a forced vote on Cummins for the Senate short term.

JEFFERSON CLUB TO WEED OUT 2000 DELINQUENT MEMBERS

Committee Is Appointed to Obtain New Headquarters at 3639 Olive Street.

The Jefferson Club officials are getting their pruning knives ready for 2000 members of the organization who are reported to be delinquent in dues.

The total membership of the club, according to Secretary Lovelace, is 6000.

"But," adds Lovelace, "we count only 4000, because the remainder expect us to live without money."

At a meeting of the Board of Directors a committee was appointed to obtain new headquarters for the club at 3639 Olive street, the old O'Fallon Mansion. Secretary Lovelace says the club's present building at Grand avenue and West Pine boulevard is dilapidated and the directors decided on removal because of the owner's refusal to make necessary repairs.

LATEST LIVESTOCK.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Sept. 2.—Estimated receipts today compare with a week and a year ago as follows:

	Today.	Week ago.	Year ago.
Cattle	6,500	5,500	9,400
Hogs	8,000	6,200	9,700
Sheep	4,500	5,100	2,900
Horses and mules	300	225	325

NATIVE CATTLE—Quality of the 3000 natives received did not average near as good as yesterday's offerings, although a fair number of good steers were received, selling from $6.40 to $6.75, but they lacked considerable of being as good as the choice bunch that sold late yesterday at $7.20. Quite a number of medium and fair grades sold from $5.50 to $6.25. Trading was slow and prices were generally about a dime lower.

The supply of butcher stock was fairly large and consisted mostly of grassy cattle, although a few good kinds were included. The trade for heifers was slow and the demand irregular, some buyers paying about steady values, while others could not be interested. Cows sold steady, as did also bulls and calves. Heifers sold up to $5.25, cows at $4.25, bulls at $3.50 and choice vealers at $7.50, with most of the good calves around $7.

There was not a great many stock cattle included in the day's offerings and the trade was quiet, with the few sales made at a steady range of prices.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—About 3500 head were received today, and they were principally grassers of medium to pretty good quality that sold actively at full steady prices.

Texas and Oklahoma steers sold up to $4, with bulk of the day's offerings selling selling at $3.60@3.90, cows at $2.50@3.50, bulls at $2.80, mixed at $2.75, and calves at $4@6. Arkansas mixed lots brought $2.40@3, cows and heifers at $2.50@2.90, bulls at $2.60@2.65 and calves $2@6.

HOGS—The hog trade opened a little slow and lower, the good hogs such as the shippers bought yesterday morning at $7@7.10 were 10@20c lower, but mixed packers were not more than 5c lower than yesterday afternoon. Shippers were fairly good buyers early, but the packers played a waiting game and bought but few during the first two or three hours.

Good shipping hogs with weight sold at $6.75@6.85, and what hogs the city butchers purchased cost them the same. Packers bought a few good hogs at $6.70@6.75, but they got most of the mixed hogs at $6.55@6.65, and some still lower. Grassy pigs and lights sold very slow and at noon very few had changed hands, but they sold lower and prospects were good that a good many would be held over.

SHEEP—With a moderate supply on sale the market was active and, while it was generally called steady, it was a shade stronger, and a few choice lambs sold 10c higher, the best bringing $6.15, which is the highest price reached for several weeks. Other good lambs sold at $5.75@6, medium grades $5@5.65, fair $4.50@4.90, and culls from $3@4. Mutton sheep were steady, selling at $4@4.25, and breeding ewes were also steady, the best going at $4.50@5. Stockers were in fair demand at steady prices and bucks sold much the same as they have for the past few days.

HORSES AND MULES—The supply on sale in the ring today was moderate, with a satisfactory proportion of quality. The general market is steady with last week.

Light mule receipts are manifest and trading rules draggy at a steady range of values.

INDEPENDENT STOCKYARDS.

CATTLE—Market opened steady at yesterday's close. Not many cattle on sale. Steers, $3.50@3.85; heifers, $3.10@5; cows, $2.25@3.50; calves, $7.

HOGS—Market opened weak and closed 5c to 10c lower than yesterday. Receipts were light and not enough to supply the demand. Hogs 195 to 210 pounds, $6.90. No demand for grassy hogs.

$1,071,000 OF RUSSELL SAGE SECURITIES PROVE VALUELESS

Astute Financier, Supposed Almost Infallible, Was Caught by Carpet Bag Government Bonds.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—That even as astute a financier as Russell Sage does not always display infallible judgment in the selection of investment securities, is shown in the schedules filed by his executors, in which stocks and bonds, having a par value of $1,071,000 proved to be actually worthless.

Part of these issues consisted of bonds issued by the carpet-bag government of the Southern States just after the war, which have since been repudiated. Among these were $146,000 of Georgia 7-per-cent gold bonds.

Mr. Sage's pet scheme was the Poughkeepsie & Erie Railroad. At one time this threatened to be an important factor in the East, as it was designed to connect the Erie with the New York & Northern, giving the Erie an entrance into Manhattan Island. Mr. Sage owned all the $500,000 stock of the Poughkeepsie & Eastern. The executors sold the railroad for $350,000.

FINANCIAL ITEMS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—The weekly bank statement shows the following changes: Loans and discounts increased $1,371,000; lawful money reserve increased $471,000; due from other banks decreased $1,344,000; due to other banks increased $1,647,000; deposits increased $211,000; circulation decreased $387,000.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 2.—The Pittsburg stock market, while continuing dull, had a better tone Wednesday. There was a moderate increase in buying orders noted, but as offerings of most stocks are still very small, these bids did not result in any transactions, active bidding being necessary to fill orders of any size. Pittsburg Coal preferred was a strong feature of the trading, gaining a full point to 44½, and holding the gain. Other stocks showed no decided tendency either way, and with small sales ranged around the opening figures throughout the session.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—There are evidences of a slightly stronger general demand for money among local banks, but the change from recent dullness does not warrant marking up loans. It is the impression of most bankers that September rates will remain at 4½ to 5 per cent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The domestic refined sugar market Tuesday was steady and unchanged, with all refiners doing business on the basis of 4.90c net, less 1 per cent for cash for fine granulated.

Spot raw sugars were steady and unchanged, with centrifugal quoted at 3.90c, muscovado at 3.40c and molasses at 3.15c.

The London beet sugar market was steady, with August and September unchanged at 9s 6d for both.

LARGELY HIGHER LEVELS IN WHEAT

Congestion in September Strengthens Other Options and Liberal Gains Made.

The local wheat market bore an aspect of pronounced strength Wednesday, the congestion in September affecting the other options and prices were bid up to largely higher levels. Late recessions lowered values somewhat from the top, but the close still show advances of ¼c to 1½c for the day.

The opening was steady and rather dull. Although it is rather too late for the excessively low temperatures in the Northwest to be much of a factor, still the cold weather encouraged the general bullish turn to the sentiment in the pit. The market for some time has been entirely controlled by conditions in the pit and this situation continued this morning, the pronounced strength of September option, together with the premiums of cash wheat and the small supplies in all directions, restrained offerings and enabled prices to advance readily under the fair demand.

Winter wheat farmers continue to show a holding tendency, country offerings from the Southwest being again small, and the heavy receipts of spring wheat in the Northwest were well handled by a generous cash demand. Stocks in the Northwest have begun to increase, those at Minneapolis showing a gain of 75,000 bu for four days, but the effect of the new movement has not been depressing as yet. Good flour sales were reported in the Northwest and it was the early advance in the markets of that region which was instrumental in lending strength to the local and Chicago pits. Some bullish advices were forwarded by Broomhall in regard to the supply of wheat of the world, and all markets reported a brisk demand for cash wheat.

The demand increased as the session advanced and, there being little resistance to the upward movement, largely higher levels were established.

September wheat opened ⅝c higher at 95¾c and was bid up to 96⅞c. December wheat opened unchanged at 96c, advanced to 96⅛@96¼c, sold down to 96c, advanced to 97c, sagged to 96⅞c and advanced to 97⅛c. May wheat opened ⅜c higher at $1, sold at 99⅞c and was bid up to $1.00⅞@1.01.

Broomhall has carefully analyzed the report of the Hungarian Minister, as given yesterday, and says: "The Hungarian Minister estimates what deficit of importing countries will be about 624,480,000 bu and that exporting countries will be in a position to supply about 610,830,000 bu. Thus there will be a shortage of about 14,000,000 bu. I consider this report unreliable, partly because these figures are based on last year's Argentine and Australian crops, and also because these figures include a surplus from the United States of 211,600,000 bu, against 151,600,000 bu exported last year."

Berlin wheat closed 1¼c higher. Berlin wheat ¼d to ½d higher and Antwerp wheat ⅝c higher.

The cash demand at Minneapolis was good, with No. 1 Northern wheat 3c over Sept. and No. 2 Northern ½c over. Minneapolis cars were 268, against 115 last year; Duluth, 197, against 79 last year, and Winnipeg 62, against 51 last year.

The late trading was rather quiet. Prices for some time held steady at the high levels, the chief props to bullish confidence being reports of good flour sales at Minneapolis, liberal export workings both from the seaboard and the interior, and the lack of burdensome supplies. Shorts, however, have covered so freely lately that towards the last of the session there was not much of a demand. Prices eased off from the top, but closed steady with values still showing good gains.

September wheat closed at 96⅝c sellers, December wheat at 96¾c sellers and May wheat at 100⅛c.

Cash wheat sold higher and ruled strong under a good demand.

Primary receipts of wheat were 971,577 bu, with shipments of 757,600 bu, and local receipts were 73,000 bu, with shipments of 103,710 bu.

Seaboard clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 469,000 bu.

Corn ruled quiet. Some firmness was shown early, moderate gains being based on the frost danger caused by the cold weather throughout the belt, the advance in wheat and the small stocks. Cables on corn closed unchanged. Cash corn was in good demand and firm.

The market eased off in the late trading, scattered liquidation meeting very little demand. The close was easy and unchanged for September to ¼c to ⅝c lower on the other options. Seaboard clearances of corn for the day were 2000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 515,041 bu, with shipments of 281,965; and local receipts were 39,900 bu, with shipments of 44,140 bu.

Oats were neglected, but the tone was firm if dull. Few sales were made, but final quotations showed gains of ¼c to ½c for the day. Cash oats ruled firm. Oat sclearances were 4000 bu.

Primary receipts of oats were 782,540 bu, with shipments of 494,794 bu; and local receipts were 68,800 bu, with shipments of 83,700 bu.

FLOUR—Receipts were 5485 bbls.; shipments 18,770 bbls. Quote soft winter flour, patents, $4.40@4.65; straights, $4.10@4.25; extra fancy, $3.84@4 in wood; hard, jute sacks, patent, $4.40@4.60; straight, $4.10@4.25; clears, $3.25@3.60; low grade, $2.75@3.10; spring patents, $[illegible] in jute.

HAY—Receipts were 625 tons local and 120 tons through; shipments 390 tons. Quote timothy, choice, $12@12.50; No. 1, $10.50@11.50; No. 2, $8.50@9.50; No. 3, $5@7; no grade, $3@4. Clover, mixed, choice, $9.50@10.50; No. 1, $8.50@9.50; No. 2, $7@8; clover hay, No. 1, $10@14; No. 2, $7@8.50.

RAILROAD NEWS AND GOSSIP

Denver & Rio Grande.

The Denver & Rio Grand Railroad Co. reports for July:

It is positively stated, in connection with the rumor that E. H. Harriman may be elected a director of the Wabash Railroad Co. and the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co., that no meeting of these boards has been called to take such action. Some interests closely identified with these companies will not be surprised to hear that Mr. Harriman has been elected a director in those companies, but so far as the Wabash is concerned they do not believe the election will take place prior to the annual meeting of the stockholders, which is scheduled to be held the first week in October. It is stated that at present there are no vacancies in the Board of this corporation.

St. Louis Money Market.

St. Louis bank averages show abnormally large cash reserves for this season of the year. Even the moderate expectation of some of the local banking fraternity have been surpassed by a very light demand for funds on the part of the country. Historians draw an analogy between this year and 1904, but even in the latter year conditions here were not so unusually easy as at the present time.

Quotations of three and four months funds are 4 to 4½ per cent, and interior institutions are still proffering considerable sums to local borrowers. Demand funds are more plentiful than ever and several collateral loans were reported at 4 per cent Wednesday.

BARRISTERS OF CATHOLIC FAITH DEFEND DIVORCE

Nine of Ten Questioned Hold It Is a Necessary Evil.

TAKE CASES OF MERIT

Are Guided by Law of Land, Not of Church, in Practice.

Should a Catholic lawyer accept and prosecute divorce cases?

This question, raised at a meeting of the Federation of Catholic Societies at Sodality Hall, 17 North Grand avenue, several days ago, has aroused considerable discussion among Catholics of the city, lawyers and others.

Several Catholic lawyers were asked by the Post-Dispatch to state their views on accepting divorce suits. Many refused to discuss the matter. Others expressed themselves as follows:

Let the State aim at the promoting of such conditions as will enable all persons to marry early in life, and to bring up their families in comfort, and let the churches discourage divorce not in the courts but in the homes of the people.

Cannon Declines Cases.

Thomas D. Cannon, president of the Federated Catholic Societies of St. Louis: Unless property rights or the safety of children demand it, Catholic lawyers should not accept employment to prosecute divorce cases; they should defend against divorce proceedings whenever duty calls. For several years I have declined that class of litigation.

Vincent Dempsey: That question cannot be answered with a mere yes or no. Much depends upon circumstances as to whether a Catholic lawyer should accept the prosecution of a divorce suit. There is a great difference in the merit of various divorce cases.

John B. Desvir: This question was raised in France. The decision there was that a Catholic lawyer had a perfect right to assist a party in procuring a divorce, because divorce decrees merely fix civil status. These are my personal views.

Duty to Enforce Law.

Frank H. Ryan: It is a lawyer's business to enforce the law as he finds it. If people desire to have their civil marriages annulled and ask the advice of a lawyer his duty is to tell them if they have a good cause of action. If they have and want hi mto bring a suit it is his duty to obtain a decree.

E. C. Slevin: My idea is that a Catholic lawyer is justified, the same as a lawyer of any other faith, in accepting a meritorious divorce case. He is bound to recognize the statutory laws in all civil matters. If he sees from the facts that his client has a good case he should file suit and prosecute it like any other litigation.

Edward A. Feehan: I see no objection to a Catholic lawyer taking a meritorious divorce suit if it is brought to settle a domestic problem for which there seems to be no other solution. Even if the parties intend remarriage and the lawyer knows it, he might be justified in going ahead with the suit, for the marriage might not be such as the church would hold valid.

Law Is Only Concern.

Charles J. Fox: This is an elementary proposition. A Catholic lawyer, like any other lawyer, carries out the state laws. That's all he concerns himself about in his practice.

William Scullin: No lawyer, of whatever religion, should bring a divorce suit unless he is convinced there is no other way out of the difficulty in which the parties find themselves. Divorce, however, merely fixes the civil status and when property rights or the protection of children are involved, Catholic priests often advise an appeal to the Divorce Court. But, of course, the parties do not remarry. They are not divorced in the eyes of the church.

SEWER WORKMEN CALL OUT TO RESCUE WOMAN'S BRACELET

Miss Laura Georgen May Have Lost Article by Calling at Police Station.

"The bracelet awaits Miss Georgen's pleasure at this station."

The foregoing appendix to a report written by Policeman Loepker, Central District, is a sequel to a scene at Ninth and Olive streets Tuesday afternoon in which Miss Laura Georgen, 4133 Lee avenue, and Policeman Loepker were the central figures.

As Miss Georgen was passing the corner her bracelet slipped from her wrist and rolled into a sewer. The young woman was soon surrounded by a large crowd of men who had been attracted by her dejected look as she stood peering into the hole.

Policeman Loepker soon arrived and Miss Georgen, embarrassed by the excitment she had caused, whispered her name into the policeman's ear and disappeared. Loepker summoned employes of the sewer department and a few minutes later the bracelet was recovered.

The crowd, disappointed when they found what had aroused their curiosity, dispersed and the bracelet was carried to Central District Station.
